A Prohibition Incident.
Rickard Knew Men.
Signing the Pledge.
Trimming Elijah.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1929.)

A WOMAN in Newark, 37 years old, tells the police she has killed Julius Brennen, 56 years old. He brought whisky and cocaine to her house. She took both and killed him. That is all she remembers. Interesting incident for those that consider prohibition a success!

"TEX" RICKARD is dead, and distinguished citizens speak in praise of him.

He once ran gambling houses in the West, but found more nearly "a sure thing" when he organized on a paying basis, incorporated and listed on the stock exchange, the intense desire of certain prosperous gentlemen to see SOMEBODY ELSE knocked down, and knocked out.

"TEX" RICKARD understood human nature. He knew, through and through, the fighters that he put in the ring, and the crowds that he drew to see them.

And he didn't think much of either.

IF YOU don't believe in the Kellogg pact, it will comfort you to know that, thanks to Senator Reed, of Missouri, there will be plain talk in the Senate before the pact goes through.

The pact is a sort of solemn promise, by Uncle Sam, never to attack anybody, wantonly.

Whom has he EVER attacked wantonly?

A drunkard needs to sign a pledge, a temperance man does not.

Why should Uncle Sam sign a peace pledge, merely because European nations insist on fighting each other?

THE Question Mark was landed yesterday afternoon after more than 150 hours of continuous flight.

All non-stop flying records are broken. That machines, in flight, can take fuel and supplies from smaller, swifter planes, has been abundantly proved.

The interesting question now is: "How long can American airplane engines continue working?"

The Question Mark might have flown from Los Angeles to China and ack again, without landing, so far as endurance is concerned.

F. TRUBEE DAVISON, assistant secretary of war in charge of aviation, wired from Washington to the fliers above Los Angeles, "Let's trim Elijah."

Elijah, you remember, went to heaven in a chariot of fire. Exactly where heaven is, or how long it took Elijah to go there, is not known.

But so far as this earth is concerned, Elijah has been "trimmed" by the Question Mark. Young Mr. Davison is the right man for his job. He flies constantly, although badly smashed up at the start of his flying in war time.

MIAMI'S new municipal airport, Chapman field, was opened yesterday, with 100 airplanes roaring overhead.

"Stunt" exhibitions, races, bomb dropping with cash prizes for precision, and other features, reminded the crowd that Miami was up with the times and a little ahead.

THOSE who think a couple of tornadoes, plus a crowd of real estate sharks from the outside, can permanently injure a state like Florida, don't know much about Florida, or about Americans generally.

WALL STREET did not welcome Herbert Hoover's return as cheerfully as it might have done. Stocks went off, although money for speculation cost "only" 7 per cent.

Wall Street, and Mr. Hoover knows it well, was none too enthusiastic about his election. Perhaps the street thinks Mr. Hoover will be "an independent" president. The street does not like that kind.

CHINESE authorities in Canton have forbidden the "Ben Hur" picture, calling it "Christian propaganda decoying the people to superstition."

To hear Christianity called "superstition" will surprise many of us.

IN ANY case "Ben Hur" cannot be called Christian propaganda. It is, if anything, "Jewish propaganda," since the hero is a fine young Jew. His sister and mother, admirable characters, both Jewesses.

HENRY FORD is said to have sent an offer to build 155 miles of first-class high roads to suit the Egyptian government, if that government would remove the duty from Ford cars. Egypt might accept. No cars are manufactured in Egypt, no competition with home industry.

Owners of Egyptian camels and donkeys that carry tourists to the pyramids would not like it.

MOHAMMED told his followers that when he rode to heaven on his white horse, he saw angels with eyes many miles apart. Each eye would be bigger than a big lake. That was exaggeration.

MODERN astronomers travel farther, in realty, than Mohammed ever traveled in imagination. They have built "an eye" made of polished glass. A lens, 200 inches in diameter. It will reveal what Mohammed could not imagine.

RITA NEED

On behalf of 9-year-old Rita Need, 732 Bellefonte street, Attorney Albert Martin today filed suit against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for $100,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been suffered July 15, 1926, when the child stepped into a hole and fell against steel rails at the railroad platform at Second and Hazelwood avenues. Injuries forced her to stay in Homeopathic Hospital practically ever since, the suit says.

SEARS, ROEBUCK TO BUILD HERE

Sears, Roebuck & Co., nationally known mercantile store corporation, has announced its entrance into the Pittsburgh shopping field.

Ground has been purchased on the east side of North Highland avenue between Station and Rodman streets, and a modern store building will be constructed which with the ground will represent an investment of approximately $3,000,000.

4-STREET FRONTAGE

The site consists of more than 2½ acres and includes the former Sacred Heart Church property, the C. P. Seip, the S. J. Wainwright, the Matilda Homann and the Robert H. Bell properties. It includes frontages on North Highland and Sheridan avenues and Station and Rodman streets. The transaction was handled through the Nicola Realty Company.

This location was chosen by officials of Sears, Roebuck & Co. and

Herbert Hoover, Jr., To Head Radio Dep't

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Herbert Hoover, Jr., 25, will become director of the radio telephone communications of the Western Air Express and technical assistant to the president, Harris M. Hanshue, it was announced here today.

BRIDAL COUPLE DIES IN FIRE

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Two persons, a young bride and bridegroom, were known to have perished in a fire which destroyed the Orpheum Hotel annex here today. Other bodies may be found in the ruins.

Three hours after the fire was discovered, and firemen had gained control, the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walker, each aged 22, were found in their room on the third floor.

A score of thrilling rescues were effected by firemen before the blaze was brought under control.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The hotel register was burned and it was impossible to check on the number of guests.

Special N. Y. Bill May Admit Smith to Bar

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Former Gov. Al Smith may become a lawyer under a bill by Assemblyman Walter S. Gedney, which would authorize the state board of law examiners to certify for entrance to the bar "any person who has been four times elected Governor of New York state."

"I planned to do this last year, but Al Smith told me if the bill was passed he would veto it," Gedney said today.

FEAR JAWORSKI SUICIDE; VASBINDER SUSPECT HELD

Coincident with the transfer of Paul Jaworski from one cell to another in murderers row in the Allegheny County Jail to forestall any attempt at suicide, word was received here today that a man believed to be John Vassbinder, his pal in the daring escape from the jail a year and a half ago, had been arrested in Houston, Tex.

Jaworski under sentence of death, whose execution was postponed pending a sanity test, is being constantly guarded. "Don't bring me a priest, bring me three machine guns and I'll get out of here in a jiffy," Jaworski told Chief County Detective George W. Murren.

"I don't care anything about my soul. I want to save my body," said Jaworski.

The committee which examined Jaworski relative to his sanity, will make its report to the pardon board next week.

The County Commissioners received today a letter from Mrs. Mary Bastuba and her daughters, Claire Bastuba and Mrs. Helen Kuptz, of Detroit, claiming the $5,000 reward offered for the arrest of Sam Jaworski. Sam was wanted as an accomplice of his brother Paul in the latter's escape from the county jail.

It was Mrs. Bastuba who gave Detroit police information which led to Sam Jaworski's arrest.

EXPLORER DESCRIBES RESCUE

IN THE second installment of his dramatic narrative of his rescue from the Arctic ice following the tragic disaster to the dirigible Italia last summer, Gen. Umberto Nobile told yesterday how he and his five companions in the "Red Tent" on the ice peak waited anxiously for the return of the rescuing aviators.

Lieut. Einar Lundborg finally accomplished a successful landing near the refugees. Nobile described how he demanded that Engineer Cecinoni be taken first by Lundborg to the base ship Citta Di Milano at King's Bay, Spitzbergen; how Lundborg and the Italians insisted that Nobile should go first; and how he finally consented, and was put aboard Lundborg's plane.

The surviving members of the Italia party with Gen. Nobile on the ice then were: Signor Viglieri, Prof. Behounek, Czecho Slovakian scientist; Engineer Trojani, Engineer Ceciconi and Wireless Operator Biagi.

Gen. Nobile now continues his defense of this course, which soon was to precipitate a world-wide controversy and a flood of criticism against him.

ROME, Jan. 7.—The airplane turned on its skids helped by Viglieri and Biagi and faced the wind. The motor quickened. We began to move sliding along the snow. I was behind Schyberg. (Lundborg's aide). Suddenly I felt we were rising. After a little I moved to look out. Under us was the ice pack, that terrible pack on which we had fallen a month before.

I looked for the tent, but at first did not succeed in locating it. Schyberg pointed it out to me. A little miserable thing, a rag of dirty stuff, which was difficult to distinguish in the midst of the whiteness of the ice. I felt a tightening of the heart, thinking of my companions still there on that little piece of ice, lost among so many. The only sign of life was the festoon of a red and white flag hoisted to the cross bar of the wireless.

I was absorbed for some minutes in looking at all this. The cold of

Mayor Puts O. K. On Livingston Job Removal Measure

Mayor Charles H. Kline today signed his approval to the removal of the job of chief inspector of weights and measures, formerly held by Murray G. Livingston, from the protection of the Civil Service Commission.

The commission announced last Monday a decision to amend its rules by changing the classification of the job from the non-competitive to the exempt grade. Under the law the change to be effective had to be approved by the Mayor.

Livingston was discharged by Mayor Kline after he testified before the Civil Service Commission that the Mayor ordered the discharge of A. L. Nolan, an inspector of weights and measures, for political reasons. The commission ordered the reinstatement of Nolan. As a result of the job now being in the exempt class, however, it is doubted whether the commission could reverse the Mayor's discharge order.

The commission has not set a date for Livingston's hearing.

Plane, Jazz Band Speed Couple To Wedding

RENO, Nev., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Following an airplane flight from Oakland, Cal., here, with a jazz band to entertain them as they winged to Reno, George R. Henshaw, Texas oil magnate, and Caladovia Clay Pulliam, of San Anselmo, Cal., were honeymooning today. They were married here last night shortly after they arrived.

When the plane landed here, Henshaw and his future bride clambered from the plane, and following them with their instruments came the band. The band struck up a lively tune and the party was then whisked away to the Courthouse, where a wedding license was secured.

The cold wave is passing.

Dipping to 3 above zero, official temperature at 7 and 8 o'clock this morning, the coldest weather of the season, the mercury started rising and the weather bureau announced warmer weather is in sight.

ZERO AT NORTH END

Zero was recorded unofficially at the North End reservoir. Other low temperatures unofficially reported were: Bellevue, 2; Cafton, 2; Filtration Plant, 2; Billiant Pumping Station, 3; Herron Hill, 8, and East Pittsburgh, 9.

Nearby towns reported lower temperatures than at the local weather bureau, a tested thermometer at Mt. Lebanon recording 1.

Tonight temperatures ranging from 12 to 15 degrees are predicted, and tomorrow it is expected the mercury will mount above the freezing mark.

In the west, from whence came the blast, high temperatures are reported. Bismarck, N. D., reported a rise of 48 degrees and Duluth, Minn., from a low of 26 degrees below zero, reported a rise of 54 degrees. Throughout the Canadian Northwest it is warming up.

Woman "Lifer" May Be Given Clemency

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Gov. Fred W. Green today indicated that executive clemency may be extended to Mrs. Etta Mae Miller, first woman to be sentenced to life imprisonment in Michigan under the habitual criminal law. She was convicted of four liquor law violations. The Governor's comment followed a decision yesterday by the State Supreme Court, upholding the criminal code and its habitual criminal section.

Airship to Aid In Hunt for Boy Thought Kidnaped

AKRON, O., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—An airship will be used today in a search for Melvin Horst, 4-year-old Orrville boy, who disappeared from his home in that place, December 27.

The baby blimp Puritan was ordered today to fly over country surrounding Orrville in the hope that some trace of the boy might be found.

CHILDREN AID HUNT

ORRVILLE, O., Jan. 8.—It is now 12 days since 4-year-old Melvin Horst vanished and investigating officials are still sadly perplexed.

Thousands of school children from 150 rural schools of Wayne County today continued their hunt for the body of the missing boy.

Today the investigators face the test. Assistant Prosecutor Walter Mougey went before the grand jury to make out his case against the Arnold family. To obtain indictments he must convince a Wayne county jury that Elias Arnold, his two sons, his daughter and a son-in-law are implicated in Melvin's absence.

WITNESSES ACCUSE 'DOCTOR'

By JAMES M. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

COURT HOUSE, YORK, Pa., Jan. 8.—"We'll get a lock of the old man's hair. That will break his bad luck spell."

Those were the words of John Blymyer, admitted "pow-wow" doctor, used as he and two others started for the home of Nelson D. Rehmeyer, 60-year-old farmer recluse and practitioner of the black art, on the night of November 27, last, when Rehmeyer was beaten and burned to death, it was testified today by Clayton G. Hess, a 25-year-old lumber company foreman. Hess is a star witness in the trial of Blymyer for first-degree murder.

ALLOWS "WITCH" STORY

The "witchcraft" phase of the murder was permitted in testimony by Judge Ray P. Sherwood, despite protest of A. W. Hermann, district attorney, who sought to suppress "hexism" evidence.

"Blymyer came to our place and talked about the spell that Rehmeyer had cast over my family," said Hess. "He asked me to drive out to the woods near Rehmeyer's place. He said he wanted to get some of Rehmeyer's hair. He said he would dig a hole and put it eight feet under ground and in that way would break the spell he had cast over my father and mother.

"The next day, the day of the murder, he said he needed help in the job. He said Rehmeyer was so big he would need some one to hold him while he started to cut the lock from his hair. He asked me to go with him and help him do it. I refused."

DRIVEN TO FARM

The witness admitted, however, that his brother, Wilbert, agreed to go along on the murder trip with the "pow-wow" doctor. He, Clayton Hess, drove Blymyer, Curry, Wilbert Hess to the Rehmeyer

Minister in Texas Faces Heresy Trial

TEMPLE, Tex., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Elders of the Central Texas Presbytery convened here today to decide whether the Rev. H. G. Kenney, Presbyterian minister of Cameron, Tex., shall be tried on charges of heresy. The session was secret and the decision may not be known for some time. The specific charges against the minister have never been made public, but they are understood to involve his alleged modernistic views.

Benjamin N. Duke, Tobacco Man, Dies

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Benjamin N. Duke, 74, tobacco manufacturer, died at his home at 2 East Eighty-ninth street today. Burial will be Thursday in Durham, N. C. At Mr. Duke's bedside were his wife, Mrs. Sarah Pearson Duke; his daughter, Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr.; his son-in-law, Mr. Biddle, and his clergyman, the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman. The capitalist was stricken with a bronchial attack last night and failed to rally.

FRANKLIN AMMON

'LOST' LAWYER, F. A. AMMON, FOUND SAFE

What promised to be a dramatic mystery in the disappearance of a widely-known Pittsburgh attorney came to an abrupt end today when Franklin A. Ammon, member of the Allegheny county bar, turned up at Bettis Flying Field, McKeesport, after a wide search for his whereabouts had been instituted by family, friends and the police.

CLEVELAND BOUND

Ammon had been suffering from influenza and visited the aviation hangars saying that he desired to take passage in an airplane to Cleveland.

Yesterday Ammon left his sickbed to attend the funeral services of Joseph Valotta, Italian, who had been saved from the electric chair largely through Ammon's efforts. Ammon said he "would stick by his client to the end," and disregarding advice of his friends, attended the funeral services and the exercises at the cemetery where he was exposed to inclement weather.

FOUL PLAY FEARED

When her husband did not return home for dinner at their home, 2258 Dellrose avenue, Carrick, Mrs. Ammon last night searched hospitals and after an all-night's vigil she reported his disappearance to the Missing Persons Bureau. Mrs. Ammon declared she feared her husband had met with foul play, since Italians in a lawsuit in which Ammon was counsel had threatened to "blow up" his home.

HEADED FOR CLEVELAND

Shortly before noon word was received from D. Barr Peet, owner of Bettis Field, that Ammon had gone there and was negotiating for passage to Cleveland. Peet, who knew Ammon, said he believed his visitor was ill and telephoned to Mrs. Ammon. After calling off the search Mrs. Ammon went to Bettis Field to care for her husband.

Coolidge to Hunt Quail in Maryland

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Not satisfied with his hunting experiences in Virginia and Georgia, President Coolidge has obtained a Maryland hunting license and during the next week will make several sorties after quail.

His companions will be Col. Edward Starling, of the secret service, and Col. Osmun Latrobe, his military aide.

TUBE CITY TEACHERS LEAD OUT FLOCK

More than 2,400 students of McKeesport High School marched or leaped to safety today when fire, believed to have started from a lighted pipe left in a student's overcoat, swept a basement cloakroom and threatened to destroy the 85-room structure.

Members of a gymnasium class, with J. E. Taylor, physical director, in a room adjoining the fire, quickly donned garments over their gym suits and ran to a fire escape by which they reached the school yard.

All other students, headed by teachers, marched from the big building in perfect order at the sound of the fire gong, shortly after 10 o'clock. Instructions in red chalk on classroom blackboards were followed, the classes moving out two by two.

Students shivered in near-zero weather and watched firemen subdue the blaze in 20 minutes. Wraps of nearly 500 students were destroyed, causing loss estimated by Dr. J. B. Richey, superintendent, at $10,000. Loss to the building will not exceed $1,000, firemen said.

There was no furnace near the cloakroom. The blaze was discovered by Charles Hoffman, building superintendent.

Classes were resumed this afternoon.

Henry Ford Drops in On Edison for Chat

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Henry Ford dropped in at the Thomas A. Edison laboratory building yesterday, and spent an hour with his friend, the inventor. Edison's secretary, William H. Meadowcroft, said the inventor would depart for his winter home in Fort Meyer, Fla., on January 15 and that he would meet Mr. Ford and Harvey Firestone there.

Lindbergh's Mother Plans Early Return

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of the famous trans-Atlantic flier, is planning to return to the United States on January 19 after a period of chemistry teaching at the American College. She will go by way of Egypt.

All Angora turned out today in honor of a visit by Mrs. Lindbergh.

Reward Offered, 3 Arrested in "Dairy" Slaying

CANTON, O., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Search for the slayer of John Oser, Jr., Stark county dairy farmer, and his wife, Bertha, continued unabated today, backed by a reward of $1,000 offered by the county commissioners at the suggestion of Sheriff Ed Gibson.

The reward is for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the killer.

The sheriff said he would go to Franklin, Pa., later today to check some discoveries made last night. The call, he said, came from officials of the Pennsylvania state police.

THREE SUSPECTS HELD

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Three men were arrested here today in connection with the slaying, Sunday, of Mr. and Mrs. John Oser, of near Canal Fulton, Chief of Police McNicholas announced.

One of the suspects, Donald McCandless, 24, of Fort Wayne, Ind., admitted he had worked on farms in the neighborhood of Canal Fulton, McNicholas said. He denied, however, that he knew the Osers or had worked on their farm.

Another suspect is Steve Stavrolakis, 32, of Youngstown. The name of the third is being withheld.

BROADWAY RECEIVES RICKARD FOR LAST TIME

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Tex Rickard returned to Broadway today.

Banked by flowers and floral offerings worth thousands of dollars, the casket containing the body of the dead promoter was borne into the Pennsylvania Station in the baggage car of the Florida Special at exactly 10:17 a. m.

Just as had been his lot in life, Rickard found crowds in death. And, in substance, it was the same crowd that assembled around him in Jersey City, in New York, in Philadelphia, in Chicago, the scenes of his greatest promotional efforts, that sorrowfully saw his homecoming today.

The terminal was jammed when the great bronze casket in which the sports king's body rested was carried from the train.

Outside the station, 100 mounted patrolmen rode at attention ready to escort the body up Broadway for 16 blocks to Madison Square Garden. Rickard's own temple, where his remains will lie in state until tomorrow.

Mrs. Rickard was near a collapse as the train arrived.

SURPRISE IN LIQUOR RING QUIZ SEEN

The secrecy maintained by government attorneys and prohibition officials on evidence for presentation before the federal grand jury investigating North Side rum rings indicate they have surprise witnesses ready to go before the jurors.

Most of those at the opening day of the investigation on Monday were North Side saloonkeepers and club operaters, many of whom were witnesses before the former grand jury inquiry and at the November trial. Among the latter were Able Berkowitz and Eugene Cappi.

Both are self-confessed bootleggers, having testified as such when on the witness stand during the North Side rum conspiracy trial in November. Each spent more than 30 minutes before the grand jurors. Cappi was a defendant in the former indictment and at the trial was a government witness, after entering a plea of nolo contendere.

Government attorneys continue reticent as to the number of North Side men they hope to indict. It is generally believed, however, that they are seeking to obtain true bills against more than 50 of the 73 men who were named defendants in the previous indictment, in addition to others who did not appear.

Before taking up the North Side investigation the grand jury heard other cases. In the meantime more than 50 men who had been subpenaed for the North Side investigation remained in the corridor outside the courtroom in which the inquisitors are meeting.

MEYER APPEARS

Assistant United States Attorney Ralph H. Smith, who is representing the government before the grand jury, was joined late in the afternoon by United States Attorney John D. Meyer. Some of the witnesses awaiting summons into the grand jury room were dismissed late in the afternoon and told to return Wednesday.

Conferences between government officials and special agents of the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau led many to suspect that income tax returns of some persons under investigation would be scrutinized.

The previous North Side rum conspiracy trial ended abruptly after testimony by nearly 200 government witnesses. Judge H. M. Gibson instructing the jury to return a verdict of not guilty because the government had failed to establish the existence of a general conspiracy in which the defendants on trial had conspired "together" to violate the prohibition law.

The court in directing the verdict declared the testimony had established a number of small conspiracies but not the general one as alleged in the indictment.

BUTLER THUGS SENTENCED

Stiff sentences were meted out today to two gasoline station bandits by Judge George V. Moore in Criminal Court, when he sentenced Michael L. Frable, 25, to from 13½ to 27 years, and Bennie Zick, 10 to 20 years.

The sentencing of the men is the sequel to the hold-up of a gasoline station in Butler County on January 21, 1926, the attempted abduction of State Highway Patrolman Brady C. Paul and the wild pursuit of the bandits by Justice of the Peace Albert T. Lorch, of Allison Park.

Lorch overtook the men. They leaped from their car and ran into a field. Lorch opened fire, wounding Frable and Zick, but the driver of the car escaped.

In Butler County the men were sentenced to the penitentiary for four to eight years. Butler County failed to notify Allegheny County authorities and the men were indicted here for robbery and felonious shooting. They have already served six months of their Butler County sentence.

Frable was given 10 to 20 years on the robbery charge and three and a half years to seven years on the felonious shooting charge. Zick's sentence was made concurrent.

Oliver High School Junior Missing

The aid of the Missing Persons Bureau was sought today in the search for Charles W. Ochsenhirt, 17-year-old junior at Oliver High School, who left his home, 3448 Corona street, January 2. The youth is believed by police to have run away, fearing punishment for hiring a "drive-yourself" automobile, with several companions, and being unable to pay the bill. He was a member of the high school orchestra.

Dr. Baker Improving Rapidly in Hospital

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, is reported as showing rapid improvement at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md., where he is a patient. He suffered an attack of the flu recently while visiting in Washington and hospital physicians deemed it advisable to operate upon him. He probably will be confined to the hospital for another three weeks.

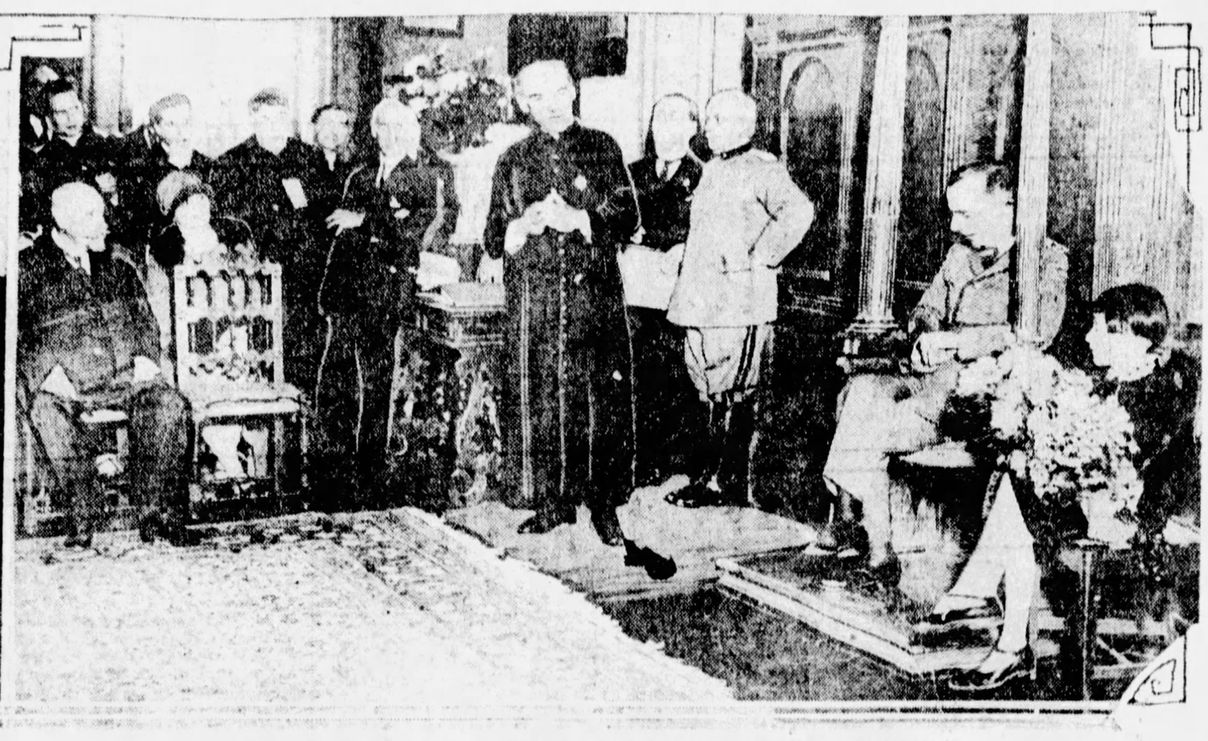
MONSIGNORE BAUMGARTEN



GEN. NOBILE

MONSIGNORE BAUMGARTEN DELIVERING ADDRESS AT NOBILE GATHERING

DRINK OF BAD RUM SENDS 'DRY BUYER' TO HOSPITAL

James B. Lewis, 32, a federal prohibition agent, gulped a drink of "bad liquor" while obtaining evidence against dry-law violators on the North Side last night.

He was taken to Allegheny General Hospital where prompt application of a stomach pump by Dr. J. W. Graham revived him. For more than two years Lewis has been a "buyer" for the prohibition department. On a number of occasions he purchased drinks of "bad" liquor which temporarily incapacitated him from buying activities, but never with very serious effect. "Buys" made by Lewis have resulted in hundreds of raids in Pittsburgh and other towns in this district.

Where he purchased the liquor that resulted in his removal to the hospital the prohibition authorities refused to divulge before the place is raided.

Babe, Frozen, Dies; Kin Found Destitute

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Discovery of a 6-week-old baby girl frozen to death beside a half-starved ill mother in a lonely farmhouse near here led Coroner J. J. Sweeney today to make a rigid investigation. Another daughter, 2 years old, was found in the farmhouse sick, hungry, crying and nearly frozen.

The dead infant was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snyder, of near Sundale. The husband is being sought in Philadelphia.

110,000 Flu Cases In West Virginia

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The estimated number of cases of influenza in West Virginia was placed at 110,000 by officials of the State Health Department on the basis of reports from 22 counties which showed 11,045 cases of the disease during the week which ended January 5.

The reported figures, Dr. David Littlejohn, director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, estimated, represented only about 10 per cent of the actual number of cases in the state.

Non-Stop World Flight Seen in Refueling

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The refueling of the Question Mark in midair enabling it to stay aloft nearly seven days paves the way for a sustained nonstop flight around the world, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of naval aviation, declared today.

"After this test, so ambitious an experiment as a non-stop flight around the globe is now brought well within the reims of possibility," Moffett said. "Motors, ship and men have proved that they are capable of it."

TEACHERS' PAY RAISE OK'D

The Board of Public Education yesterday approved the salary increases recommended by the citizens' committee on teachers' salaries. The matter was referred to the legislative committee and at the next session of Legislature an amendment providing for the increases will be introduced as part of the school code.

The amendment provides for legislative changes, which, if enacted, will enable the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia School Boards to levy such increased taxes as may be required. The legislation, as it relates to Pittsburgh, would empower the board to levy a one-fourth mill tax increase for 1930 and 1931; also an additional one-fourth mill for 1932 and hereafter.

The board re-elected Ira G. Flocken, chief accountant and statistician at an increase of $500 in salary. Charles Bernhard, chief clerk, also was re-elected at a higher salary. Henry Oliver Evans, installed as city controller yesterday, was elected school controller as required by school code. Controller Evans last night took the oath of office and then signed a document releasing the December pay checks for 1,300 school employes.

Test Plane Fliers On Radio Tonight

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The National Broadcasting Company announced today that the crew of the Army endurance plane, Question Mark, would go on the air over a national hookup tonight. They will speak from Station KFI, Los Angeles, from 7:30 to 8, eastern time. WJZ, New York, will be the Eastern station in the coast-to-coast chain composed of about 40 stations.

Woman, 91, in County Home 71 Years, Dies

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 8.—A unique record came to notice here in the death of Miss Saffira Williams, 91, at the County Infirmary as the result of pneumonia. For 71 years she had been an inmate there, having become a public charge when 20. Save distant relatives, she was the last of a family that lived in the Katylick section.

Ohio Boy, 12, Dying In Suicide Attempt

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Jan. 8.—Delbert, 12, son of Arthur Hawk, Oldtown Valley farmer, is not expected to survive an attempt at suicide at his home, south of this city, when he fired a bullet from a .22-caliber rifle into his brain as he lay in bed. The parents can assign no motive.

QUESTION MARK MADE REFUEL HISTORY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Aviation enthusiasts were speculating today on just what official records would be allowed the Army plane Question Mark following her epic endurance test which terminated late yesterday after more than 150 hours of continuous flying.

The continuous refueling while in flight is regarded as the crowning triumph.

The giant brown and gold plane was forced to give up the monotonous grind of nearly seven days after one of her three motors went "cold" and another began to sputter. It glided to a safe landing, touching Metropolitan Air Field at 2:07 p. m., after being in the air 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds.

TELL OF THRILLS

The five authors of the latest chapter of aviation pioneering are Maj. Carl Spatz, commander; Capt. Ira C. Eaker, chief pilot; Lieuts. Harry A. Halverson and Elwood R. Quesada, and Sergt. Roy Hooe.

After "polishing" themselves and resting at a local hotel, they were eager to discuss their thrilling adventure.

Capt. Eaker, who was at the controls for the final glide, gave an interesting account of the last dramatic hours of the flight.

"You know," he said, "that we made our last two refueling contacts on only two motors. That left engine had gone stone cold. We had to repair that engine to stay in flight. Old Hooe there clambered out in the wind—and it was cold. I'm here to tell you—but it wouldn't work.

"We were just managing to hold our altitude on those two motors. Then, to stay near the field we had to turn. That turn cost us 150 feet of altitude. We were down to the 2,500-foot level. Hooe was on the catwalk. We were going down.

DID NOT RISE

"So I opened her up—and we didn't rise. Right then and there I realized that we would have to land.

"Then the right motor sputtered. She appeared to be going out, but then picked up again. I didn't know whether she was going or not, but I told Halverson to watch that field. I didn't want to overshoot it. There was only one thing to do. I was going to do it even if I might find myself overcautious.

"The rest happened quickly. We came down in a long glide. I'd never experienced that sensation before, but I could hear the people on the ground talking. So could Halverson. He was sitting beside me.

"We landed and that was that."

More than 20,000 persons were banked around the air field to watch the finish of the world's greatest flight.

15 Hours Too Long To "Washee"; Strike Looms

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Many boiled shirt parties progammed for San Francisco may be compelled to turn very informal if a threatened strike of Chinese laundry workers, is carried out. These workers, numbering hundreds and used by thousands of citizens, announced yesterday they wanted an 11-hour day, instead of the 15 they have been working, and Saturday afternoon off.

Meanwhile, its an ill wind that blows no soap bubbles. The same papers that carried announcement of the strike threat carried a story of a new synthetic soap invented by San Francisco chemists. All one has to do, if one is bathing, is throw in some soap and sit still. In a few minutes one is clean.

But it won't do the ironing.

CULPRITS FIND ROTHENBERG MERCIFUL

Leo Rothenberg, newly-appointed police magistrate in the Second District, sitting in the chair so long occupied by John J. Verona, dispensed justice in the Center Avenue Police Court today.

With big bouquets and baskets of flowers on his desk and a large gathering of his political followers gazing on, Magistrate Rothenberg, in his opening hearings, assumed the attitude that "the quality of mercy is not strained."

Old offenders, thankful for a new judge, had a good day.

The first prisoners were "plain drunks," in police parlance, but their physiognomies were fancifully decorated in colors of red and blue inflicted by fists and curbstones and they told weird stories of a cruel world.

"Sometimes we think this is a bad world when it's only the whisky that's bad," said Magistrate Rothenberg. "It would never do to turn you fellows loose in the cold with all this flu in the air, so I am sending you to jail, where you will be safe until the epidemic is over."

A few other prisoners received light sentences. With no important cases on hand, the new judge spent most of his time acknowledging congratulations.

Woman Bus Victim Dies in Somerset

SOMERSET, Pa., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Hazel White, 18, wife of Elmer White, of Detroit, Mich., who was severely burned December 28, when a motor bus of the Nevin's Bus Company of Brooklyn, N. Y., crashed into a touring car on the Lincoln highway at Reels Corner, died at the Community Hospital here. Mrs. Louis Paugh, 27, and her two-year-old son James Paugh, also of Detroit, were fatally injured in the crash. Mrs. White had been in a critical condition since her admission to the hospital.

New Bond Manager At Waynesburg Bank

WAYNESBURG, Jan. 8.—D. Webster Lynch has been appointed manager of the trust and bond department of the Union Deposit and Trust Company here. Lynch will succeed Jerry E. Debolt, who has resigned on account of ill health. Announcement was also made of the appointment of Miss Josephine Zahniser as assistant to Mr. Lynch.

CITE PITTSBURGH NURSES IN CHICAGO MURDER CASE

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Dr. Amante Rongetti, once convicted of the murder of Miss Loretta Enders, 19, by performing an illegal operation, and sentenced to death, testified in his own deefnse today at his second trial.

Dr. Rongetti did not take the stand in his first trial and escaped the electric chair when the Supreme Court granted him a new trial.

Before he testified the defense introduced Mrs. Ebba Linquist Carter, of Leechburg, Pa., former superintendent of nurses at Dr. Rongetti's hospital, which was closed after Miss Enders' death.

The witness first said her name was Miss Linquist, but on cross-examination said she had been married to Edward Carter in Pittsburgh. The state on cross-examination also caused her to admit that an earlier statement that she was a high school graduate was incorrect. She said she was graduated from the Allegheny Hospital in Pittsburgh, but that her diploma and class pin were stolen.

During the questioning a matronly appearing woman was brought into the room and identified by the witness as Miss Lottie Darling, superintendent of nurses at the Allegheny General Hospital in Pittsburgh.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Carter's testimony, the state asked she be taken into custody, charging the witness was in realty Martha Linquist, a sister of Mrs. Carter. The prosecutor said a charge of perjury would be placed against her. Judge Robert E. Gentzel ordered his bailiff to take charge of the young woman.

At Allegheny General Hospital it was stated that a Miss Martha Linquist was a student nurse in the hospital two or three years ago. She wa asked to resign at the end of about nine months' service, it was stated. She was not graduated.

Miss Darling, superintendent of nurses, had been subpenaed by the state, it was said at the hospital.

farm. Mrs. Hess, wife of the witness, went along in the machine.

The witness said he next saw Blymyer, Wilbert Hess and Curry on Thanksgiving eve, after the murder had been committed. They came to the Hess farm.

Q. Did you know Rehmeyer was dead?

A. Yes. Blymyer asked me to take him to the Rehmeyer house and that if it was not burned down he wanted to burn it.

After killing the so-called "witch," the trio had set fire to the body it is alleged. The body was burned, but the house did not catch fire.

"What else did Blymyer say?"

He said: "If they get me I hope they don't get the other two boys. I am the one to blame for this."

CALLED WITCH

Hess said Blymyer told him he believed Rehmeyer to be a "wicked witch."

The witness, a slender, blond youth with a bristling pompadour and loud voice, was then excused.

Coroner L. U. Zech took the stand and identified the paraphernalia used in the crime—the broken chair, the halter rope and pieces of blood-stained wood.

The jury leaned over in the box. The spectators craned their necks. Absolute silence prevailed at this juncture. Many in the audience were of a type that are inherently superstitious by nature.

Detective Ralph Keech, who arrester Blymyer, testified that when brought to the district attorney's office, Blymyer confessed voluntarily.

Protest Wampum Bus Line

HARRISBURG, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler and New Castle Railroad Company and the Harmony Short Line Motor Transportation Company today filed a complaint with the Public Service Commission charging the Wampum Bus Company with operating between Ellwood City and New Castle, via Wampum, Lawrence County, without the authority of the commission and in violation of its certificate of public convenience.

IGNORED BY VOSS, THEY CONTEND

The City-County Air Board complained to the County Commissioners today that Capt. T. S. Voss, United States Army, commandant at Rodgers Field, allowed them no voice in the management of the field. The commissioners decided, in view of the fact that there soon will be a new municipal airport in O'Hara township, to do nothing about the complaint.

The air board is composed of William P. Snyder, representing the city, and L. T. Barry, representing the Aero Club of Pittsburgh. There was a third member, William G. Jacobs, representing the county, but he died several months ago, and the vacancy has not been filled.

Snyder and Barry said Capt. Voss would not recognize their authority to do anything but grant permits to commercial aviators to use the field. They were not consulted, they said, in regard to the licensing of pilots or the construction of hangars. Voss told them, they stated, that under the terms of the War Department's lease the Army had exclusive control over these matters.

As an inducement to the Army to use Rogers Field for the training of military aviators of the reserve corps, and also in the hope that the government might be persuaded to use the field as a station on an aerial mail roue, the city and county leased the field to the War Department for an annual rental of $1, and gave it the option to renew the lease from year to year until 1935.

Voss asserts that the terms of the lease deprive the City-County Air Board of the authority which Barry and Snyder claim.

Pittsburghers from feeling the full force of last night's blast, said Forecaster W. S. Brotzman.

"With the wind which accompanied the fall in temperature, the cold was felt considerably, but had there been snow the suffering would have been intense," he said.

Tonight there will be virtually no wind.

Welfare organizations throughout the city and county were busy this morning answering pleas from needy families for fuel, warm clothing and food.

HOMELESS AIDED

More than 1,000 homeless men were given shelter from the cold last night by the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor. The Salvation Army also reported an increase in the number seeking lodging, and police station lodging cells were well filled.

Despite the extra demand the gas supplies of all companies serving the Pittsburgh district was reported as sufficient to meet all demands.

5 BELOW AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Relief from Chicago's record cold wave will come today, according to the local forecast bureau. From an unofficial low mark of 5 degrees under zero, at 2 o'clock this morning, the mercury was expected to rise to 25 above by late afternoon.

The death toll in Chicago as a direct result of the present sub-zero wave reached four today.

Hundreds were given blankets and cots in lockups, while other hundreds were accomodated at improvised refuge stations.

Firemen were kept busy going at high speed all night as a result of overheated stoves and furnaces setting fires to homes.

Conditions west of Chicago were reported clearing today.

PITTSBURGHERS PUSHED DRUG BILL TO PASSAGE

22 DEAD, SCORES HURT IN LAVA ERUPTION

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—With five bodies recovered from the ruin caused by the eruption of the Chilean volcano, Calbuco, near Lake Llanquihue, it appeared possible today that the lava had taken a toll of 22 lives.

Dispatches from Puerto Montt said that Carbineers had unconfirmed reports that five families, totaling 22 persons, were missing. These families lived in the region which was heavily damaged when the volcano poured lava and ashes over it. Other dispatches said that many injured had been taken from the stricken area to Puerto Varas, across Lake Llanquihue.

BOATS TO RESCUE

All boats on the 30-mile wide lake were pressed into service for the rescue work. After the people had been brought to safety, cattle were being taken from the grazing land upon which the hot ashes were pouring. Hot water was also streaming from the snow-clad volcano into the lake.

The disturbance was stated to be subsiding today. The threatened district is largely settled by Germans and the people were regaining tranquility with the lessening of volcano activity.

The Calbuco volcano is 6,000 feet in height and of peculiar formation. Its three extremities border Lakes Llanquihue, Todos Santos and Chape de Este.

FLEE TC MOUNTAINS

It was believed that hundreds of homeless persons had fled to the mountains to escape the lava flow and low hanging clouds of gases.

Forest fires were started by the molten lava, driving many persons from their homes.

The eruption began early Sunday and continued actively for 24 hours. Ashes from the craters were carried by the wind for miles.

Calbuco was in violent eruption in 1892 when several new craters opened near the summit after the cone had been completely blown off. The last eruption of any importance was in May, 1917. At other times the volcano has been relatively peaceful.

At this season of the year tourists usually attempt to climb to the crater, which throws off columns of smoke and steams continuously.

REED, PORTER CREDITED FOR LEGISLATION

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Further leadership in the world-wide fight to eliminate the drug evil was credited to the United States today following final passage by the Senate of the bill by Representative Stephen G. Porter, of Pittsburgh, providing for the establishment of two great federal narcotic farms for the treatment and cure of drug addicts.

The bill, approved by the Lower House at the last session, was sponsored in the upper Chamber by Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh. Thus to the City of Pittsburgh, through its representatives in the National Congress, falls a great deal of the credit for the important forward step marked by the legislation.

INSPIRED BY HEARST

Representative Porter has revealed that he was inspired to introduce the bill during a personal conversation with William Randolph Hearst a few years ago, or about the time international negotiations were pending at Geneva for the restriction of the opium traffic. The two were discussing evils of drug addiction and methods of its correction when the suggestion came for a great federal experimental farm.

It is regarded as a tribute to Representative Porter that the present as well as several preceding measures on the narcotic problem have been passed without the necessity of a record vote in either House.

Only the signature of President Coolidge is now needed to make the bill a law and assurance has already been given that this will be forthcoming. Shortly thereafter, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, another Pittsburgher, will undertake the selection of site for the institutions. In view of the Pennsylvania proprietorship of the measure it is not unlikely that one of the farms will be located in the state.

PUNISHMENT NOT AIM

Not only federal violators but narcotic prisoners of the various states will be received at the two institutions. Designed as a humanitarian move, the purpose of the farms will be to cure addicts of the drug habit while at the same time removing them from contact with society, where criminal tendencies may work injury.

Representative Porter explained today that the bill was drafted on the theory that drug addicts suffer from a disease and can not always be catalogued as criminals. The aim, therefore, in establishing the institutions will be to treat them as patients rather than law violators.

The institutions are referred to as farms because they will, in fact, be farm centers, offering out-door occupation capable of building up broken bodies and shattered nerves.

No appropriation is provided in the present bill, which went to the White House today. Recommendations for the funds necessary will be left to the Secretary of the Treasury, who will report back to Congress after making an investigation of possible sites and various cost factors. He will also recommend the approximate accommodations to be provided.

It is the belief of Representative Porter that everything will be in readiness for final legislation authorizing funds by the beginning of the next regular session of Congress.

BLAST VICTIM BETTER, 10 RECOVER

Charles Kelly, 35, 803 Marshall avenue, one of 11 men injured when a huge tank in the Pittsburgh Transformer plant of the Allis-Chalmers Company, Preble and Columbus avenues, exploded late yesterday, was reported slightly improved in St. John's Hospital today. He suffered probable internal injuries and fracture of the skull when showered by debris.

The other men, cut and bruised and treated at St. John's Hospital, are William Marx, 31, 1236 Superior avenue; Earl J. Blackman, 37, 25 Fountain street; Albert Dauber, 42, 520 Bayne avenue, Bellevue; Charles Waechter, 27, Bellevue; J. Greenwald, 26, Columbus avenue; Albert Windner, 29, Columbus avenue; Richard E. Jones, Highland avenue, West View; James E. McCoy, chemist, Milwaukee, Wis.; Charles Reed, 48, 504 Geranium street, and Charles A. Chaffee, North Side.

Damage was estimated at $25,000 by E. G. McArn, manager of the plant. He said that a valve on a small tank inside an impregnating tank probably caused the explosion when it failed to operate properly. The impregnating tank is used in the manufacture of a substance for coil insulations.

Paper Milk Bottle To Save Nation $15,000,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Milk is being delivered to householders now in conical paper containers treated with sterilized paraffin. The new system is approved by health authorities.

Its possibility in saving of broken and lost glass bottles in the country is estimated at $15,000,000 a year. The containers are represented as able to keep milk pure a month or more.

MEXICAN REBEL EXECUTED

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The presidential bureau announced today that the insurgent chieftain, Fernando Pedroza, who was recently captured in a battle at El Gallo, Jalisco, has been courtmartialed and executed in Guadalajara.

Natalio Espinosa, another chieftain, who was captured with two followers in an engagement at Laconcina, was handed over to the authorities for trial at Lagos.

Gen. Alejandro Mange, military commander at Oaxaca, reported that negotiations were being carried on for the surrender of the only two insurgent chieftains operating in the Tehuantepec Isthmus.

Radio Short Wave May Be Useful To Surgeons

JENA, Germany, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Prof. Esau, who has been experimenting with ultra-short radio waves, is reported to have discovered that they kill small animals upon contact and will destroy bacteria cultures. This has led to the hypothesis that they may be put to surgical purposes.

With an entire transmitter occupying only the space contained in a cigar box he has succeeded in sending 250 miles without an aerial.

SIMPLE INAUGURAL PLAN GETS HOOVER'S APPROVAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—One phase of the speculation that has swirled about the return of Herbert Hoover was definitely quieted today when he gave his approval to the March 4 inauguration plans—of a simple nature.

The plans were made public by Col. U. S. Grant, chairman of the inaugural committee, and E. F. Colladay, Republican national committeeman for the District of Columbia, who conferred with Mr. Hoover and Chairman Work of the national committee.

Details of the ceremony were summed up in this statement by Col. Grant:

"In conformity with the President-elect's wishes there will be no inaugural ball and he will not attend any other ball on March 4. No objection was made to a charitable ball that evening such as was held on the induction of President Coolidge, but Mr. Hoover has made it clear that he and Mrs. Hoover will not attend.

"There will be a parade with the military features strictly limited to the Army, Navy and the Marine Corps in the immediate vicinity of Washington, and an escort for each governor from his state, but an opportunity will be given in it for limited delegations of organizations and groups representing the various phases of the life and work of the people.

"Under no circumstances will the length of the parade be extended beyond two hours and the inaugural committee has assumed the obligation of limiting participants in the parade to whatever extend is necessary to achieve this end.

"The inaugural committee's wish to provide entertainment outside the official functions for the general public which will be visiting Washington on March 4, was approved."

Separate War Vet Department Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A move to set up a separate department of veterans affairs whose head would be a member of the cabinet has been instituted in the house by Chairman Johnson of the Veterans committee. The proposed bureau would take over the National Home for disabled Volunteer soldiers and the Bureau of Pensions.

Representative Luce, of Massachusetts, said today every effort would be made to obtain passage at this sesion of the ten million dollar hospitalization bill for the veterans bureau.

Too Kind, Jurors To Be Tutored In Duties

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—A jury was sentenced to 11 days schooling when it freed a prisoner today.

In ten minutes the jury in Circuit Court had acquitted a defendant, who, a policeman testified, was found at midnight on the roof of a house with a kit of burglar tools. The charge was attempted burglary.

Then Judge George F. Rush pronounced sentence on the jurors, "If the evidence in this case will not sustain a verdict of guilty, no evidence ever will in any one case. You have 11 days more to serve, but I won't let you hear any more cases as jurors. For the remaining 41 days, you will sit in the rear of this court and try to learn something of your duties as jurors."

Penn Ave. Fire Loss Estimated At $2,500

A three-story brick dwelling at 1719 Penn avenue was damaged to an estimated extent of $2,500 early today by fire of undetermined origin. The flames damaged the upper floors, which were vacant. The restaurant of Simon Begler, on the first floor, was damaged by water.

Special Patrolman Jacob Sper discovered the blaze and sounded the alarm. Firemen fought the fire for more than an hour.

Ontario Indians To Sell Last Land Tract

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Cash will replace trinkets and an airplane the canoe of the voyagers when Canadian officials journey northward to purchase the last tract of land owned by the Indians in the province of Ontario.

The treaty to be signed in June provides for purchase of 128,320 square miles of wilderness from the Albany River north to the boundary of Manitoba.

Under terms of the treaty each man, woman and child living in this region, numbering between 1,500 and 2,000, will receive $5 at the signing of the treaty and $4 a year in perpetuity.

The treaty will give the province of Ontario title to a territory which, although now almost inaccessible, is rich in minerals and timber.

111 LOSE AUTO LICENSES

HARRISBURG, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The Department of Highways announced revocation of 111 automobile drivers' licenses for the week ending December 31. Intoxication continued to cause almost half the revocations, 46 being listed under that heading. There were nine revocations for transporting liquor and 17 for having been involved in fatal accidents.

James R. Dunn and George Mention, both of Beaver Falls, were included in the nine who lost licenses for transporting liquor.

A. H. Kennedy, Clearfield, lost his license for intoxication and failure to stop after an accident.

Lone Buck Roams Washington County

CHARLEROI, Pa., Jan. 8.—Washington county's lone buck deer has been found. He is an eight-prong beauty and was seen near Scenery Hill and Cokeburg. The deer is a roamer, farmers declare, having been seen on the Hosick and the Amos farms, almost 12 miles apart. Sportsmen declare he is the first deer to be seen in Washington county's "built-up" section in many years.

BRANDON HOLDS TWO IN HOTEL SHOOTING

William Mentzner, 50, of 10 Composite street, and Mrs. Anna Burkhart, of 4304 Second avenue, were held for court this morning on charges of felonious shooting, maintaining a public nuisance, and violating the Snyder act.

Magistrate A. D. Brandon fixed bail for each at $3,000; $1,000 for each charge.

The hearing solved the shooting of Joseph Lynch in the Burkhart hotel and saloon early the morning of December 31. Following their arrest Mrs. Burkhart said that she had shot Lynch, having mistaken him for a burglar. According to Detectives William Warnock and Thomas Coyne, Mentzner told them he did the shooting, giving the same excuse as had Mrs. Burkhart.

Mentzner said Lynch had been given a room at the hotel. Later in the night, Mentzner said, he heard someone prowling about downstairs. Taking a revolver, he came upon the supposed intruder and shot. Lynch was taken to Homeopathic Hospital, where he now is.

At the preliminary hearing it developed that the revolver was the property of Policeman Paul Kleckgether. The latter, while off duty, had visited the saloon, he said, and had left his revolver there.

Deputy Nabs Squire For Jury Service

Justice of the Peace George B. Shields, of Wilkinsburg, was haled into court by a deputy sheriff today for failing to respond yesterday to summons for jury service.

"Your honor I mistook the date January 7 for 8." Shields explained to Judge Ambrose B. Reid and exhibited the summons which showed the number, as written by the clerk, looked as much like one number as another. He said he was preparing to report tomorrow. He was put into service at once and was on a jury in a petty case.

Her Million Gone, Picks New Husband

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Wren Garland, 28, divorced wife of the man who gave away a million dollar legacy because he said he hadn't earned it, and Ellison Morris, of New York, yesterday obtained a marriage license here. She was divorced August 10, 1926 and was given custody of their four children. Morris, 31, said he was a publisher and printer, and a widower. They said the wedding would take place today.

Hoover Library Director Dead

PALO ALTO, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Dr. Frank Alfred Golder, director of the Hoover War Library at Stanford University, died yesterday at Palo Alto after several months illness.

Dr. Golder was instrumental in bringing to the library information not contained in any other library in the world, university authorities said. President-elect Hoover visited Dr. Golder at a hospital here before starting on his recent Latin-American tour.

20-CENT BANQUETS DRAW PITT CO-EDS TO Y. W. C. A.

If a few enterprising members of the University of Pittsburgh Young Women's Christian Association did not prepare a delicious luncheon every Monday, preachers and lecturers, who speak at a religious meeting at Heinz House on that day each week, might find themselves addressing empty benches.

Now, their exhortations and counsels fall upon the attentive ears of more than 100 Pitt co-eds every Monday, after the latter's gastronomic desires have been satisfied with a 20-cent luncheon that is a banquet.

The 20-cent luncheons were inaugurated some time ago by a special luncheon committee of the University Y. W. C. A., to make it possible for co-eds to attend the religious meetings during their lunch hour. Previously, as they were compelled to take their lunch elsewhere, they lacked time to attend.

Under the direction of Miss Isabelle Rupert, a senior, members of her committee every Monday don kitchen aprons and display their culinary proclivities. Soups, salads, sandwiches and chocolate are prepared in a manner unsurpassed even by department of home economics students.

At 12:30 o'clock an impromptu cafeteria is set up in the Heinz House, and other committee members begin serving the hungry co-eds who form a long line. For 20 cents they get soup, a salad, sandwich and hot chocolate. The meal is devoured in army fashion, the girls holding tray and plates on their laps wherever they find a vacant seat. After the repast, the speakers address only a mentally hungry group of students.

Among the co-eds who cater to the gastronomic tastes of their fellow students are Alene Grace, Mary Ann Johnston, Alice Keffer, Susie Schrecongost, Elizabeth Davis, Hazel Wills and Virginia Gordon.

Brighter Colors To Be Keynote Of New Shoes

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(INS)—Bright colors will be the keynote of the 1929 women's shoes, according to the leaders of hundreds of shoe men in the country who met here for their eighteenth annual convention.

The new shoes will be made with three-inch heels. Red shoes, blue shoes and green shoes, all the colors of the rainbow and more, will be the style, Dr. Joseph Lelyveld, of Rockland, Mass., declared.

EAST LIVERPOOL BLAZE LOSS $150,000

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Jan. 8.—Mayor W. L. Fogo, of Wellsville, suffered a fractured right leg, two firemen were injured, a third overcome by smoke and a woman collapsed here early today when fire swept eight business places and homes in St. Clair avenue. Loss was placed at $150,000.

In aiding the firemen of Wellsville, East Liverpool and Chester, W. Va., to battle the blaze in near-zero temperature, Mayor Fogo fell on an icy sidewalk, fracturing his leg. Fireman Orland Cunningham and Oscar Powers suffered injuries in falls. Fireman Alfred Wandyne was overcome by smoke. Mrs. Etta Kennedy, who fled with four families from an apartment, was stricken with a heart attack and is in a serious condition.

The fire destroyed the Buckeye Lumber and Building Company's 2-story frame plant; the Smith Hardware Company's 3-story frame warehouse; the Ervin Machine Company's shop and two houses owned by D. F. Nellis and Mrs. O. D. Nice. The Smith company's apartment building adjoining the warehouse and two other houses owned by Mrs. Nice and Mrs. Ella Bradfield were damaged.

GIRL THROWN FROM CAR

Helen Stiver, 17, of Grant avenue, Duquesne, is recovering in her home today from injuries suffered early yesterday when she was thrown out of an automobile in Homestead Park. Mifflin township police are searching for the man who attempted to attack her before throwing her to the street.

Miss Stiver told police she met the man in a Duquesne street and went for a ride with him. A motorist took her to the Homestead Hospital and later she was removed to her home.

Wisconsin Governor Inducted Into Office

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Walter J. Kohler, Sheboygan business man, and anti-progressive Republican, was inducted into office yesterday as Wisconsin's twenty-sixth governor. The inaugural climaxed a brief 10-months' career in politics which began last spring when Kohler became a candidate for delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention. Progressive leaders have petitioned the state attorney general to institute proceedings against the new executive, charging violation of the corrupt practices act, in connection with campaign expenditures.

DIES IN TANK OF BENZOL

Believed to have lost his balance while inspecting a tank car on the Carnegie Steel Company siding at Clairton, Matthew Plantok, 19, an employe of the company at Clairton, fell to his death in a tank filled with benzol. His body is at the morgue.

Plantok started out shortly after midnight to inspect a string of cars. When he failed to return a search was started and he was found by employes early today.

Records Show Gain In Dry Law Arrests

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 8.—Prohibition didn't function thoroughly during the past year according to police records, which show an increase from 531 to 650 in the number of arrests for liquor law violations in 1928 as compared with 1927. In the same proportion, the amount of money received in fines jumped from $6,075 in 1927 to $7,350 last year.

"I know an easy way to keep from getting fat..... Light a Lucky instead of eating sweets."

Nazimova
Famous Stage Star

Nazimova
Brilliant Dramatic Star now appearing with Civic Repertory Theatre.

THE modern way to diet! Light a Lucky when fattening sweets tempt you. That's what thousands of lovely women are doing—successfully. The delicately toasted flavor of Luckies makes them a delightful alternative for fattening sweets. Toasting does it. Toasting removes the impurities and improves the flavor of the finest tobacco. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Men who pride themselves on keeping fit discovered this long ago. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition—many prominent athletes have testified to this fact. They discovered, too, that Luckies don't irritate the throat—a fact subscribed to by 20,679 physicians.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

State Educators Survey New Castle

NEW CASTLE, Jan. 8.—Dr. Charles R. Foster, president, and Dr. J. Herbert Kelley, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association, will be in the city Tuesday for the purpose of making a survey to determine whether or not this city will be able to handle the thousands of delegates to the convention of the association to be held next December. Since this city was designated, hundreds of homes have been offered for the housing of the delegates and it is believed that there will be no trouble in taking care of the convention.

$74,000 LEFT FROM WORK ON POINT BRIDGE

Council today will consider a letter from Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works, recommending a return to the city's credit of an unexpended balance of $74,000 from an emergency appropriation of $125,000 to remove piers of the old Point Bridge.

Lang explained that the work was completed except for the abutment at the south shore line which was allowed to remain through negotiations with the War Department.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company has since made numerous requests for the city to remove the south shore pier as it necessitates breaking up tows in making landings. The work would cost from $30,000 to $80,000 and according to the Law Department the city is not obligated to remove the pier, Lang said.

DRYS DESTROY BIG STILL IN HILL RAIDS

Federal prohibition agents who have been visiting the Hill district daily during the last week conducted three raids, destroyed a huge still and made two arrests yesterday.

The still, of 100-gallon capacity, found in a three-story building at 1229 Webster avenue, along with large quantities of mash and moonshine, was destroyed, agents said. Nobody was found in the place.

Ben Deutch, 34, of 1119 Bluff street, was reported released on his own recognizance after several bottles of gin were found in his home, according to the agents' report. Two pints of moonshine found, agents say, at 82 Elm street, led to the arrest of James Frayne, 34.

Eloping Son Wins Race With Dad; Then Relents

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 8.—The race of William E. French of this city to overtake his son before the latter reached Columbus, O., to be married has ended with the return of Mr. French here and receipt of a telegram from the son, arrived at Columbus.

The son, Curtis, 20, a student at the University of Pennsylvania, promised in the wire to postpone the wedding and return to his studies. The girl's name was not divulged.

Precautions against colds and "flu"

Do these two things:

1. Protect nose and throat
2. Keep system in good condition

There's no need to get panicky because the papers are full of news of an influenza epidemic. There's no use in isolating yourself because a lot of other people are sick with it. If you take two simple precautions every day—and then don't worry—the chances are you will throw off any cold or "flu" germs you are exposed to, and keep well.

We're not recommending that you dose yourself with a lot of medicines, either. Just observe two common-sense health rules which can be easily followed.

FIRST of all, make sure your system is in first class order. Don't let it get slowed up or sluggish. See to it that it functions perfectly. The easiest way to get run down and in a condition to pick up disease is to neglect this all-important matter.

Physicians agree that, particularly in times of epidemic, purging by laxatives and cathartics is not advisable. Many doctors are therefore prescribing Nujol, as in no case does it cause exhaustion or weakening of the system in any way.

Nujol can't possibly upset you or disagree with you. For it contains absolutely no medicine or drugs.

Get a bottle today at your nearest drug store and start taking Nujol tonight as one simple way to keep fit and to protect yourself against influenza.

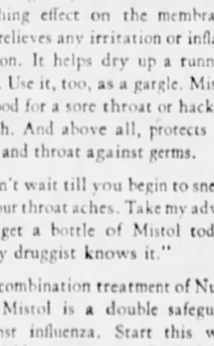
Dr. David says:



"I'm advising all my patients these days to keep Mistol on hand and use it regularly. The first thing in the morning before you go out. And again at night when you come home. Don't be afraid to use it freely. It will do no harm. And then stop worrying. You've done all you can to safeguard yourself.

"Put Mistol up your nose. There's a special dropper that comes in every package that makes it very easy to use. Just tilt your head back and drop it in your nose until you feel it in your throat. You'll notice the pleasant, cleansing effect at once. Mistol clears your head and makes breathing easy. It has a healing, soothing effect on the membranes and relieves any irritation or inflammation. It helps dry up a running nose. Use it, too, as a gargle. Mistol is good for a sore throat or hacking cough. And above all, protects the nose and throat against germs.

"Don't wait till you begin to sneeze or your throat aches. Take my advice and get a bottle of Mistol today. Every druggist knows it."

The combination treatment of Nujol and Mistol is a double safeguard against influenza. Start this wise two-fold precaution now. Don't delay.

Nujol and Mistol are both made by the same famous laboratories, of the finest quality materials and with the greatest skill possible. Both preparations are harmless. At all druggists. Aren't they worth trying?

WALLACE EDDINGER

EDDINGER, STAR OF THEATER, DIES HERE

Taken ill while appearing in the cast of "The Bunk Shtatzrem," at the Nixon theater last week, Wallace Eddinger, noted actor, died early today in the Presbyterian Hospital. Death was due to pneumonia, according to the hospital report.

Eddinger, aged 49, had spent most of his life on the stage. He was born at Albany, N. Y., and studied at Columbia University. He was seen in Pittsburgh last season in "The Zoo" and returned this year in the Players' Club production.

Eddinger began his career on the stage at the age of six and shortly thereafter originated the title role in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which he played for two and one-half years.

He was born in Albany, N. Y., in 1881, his parents, Lawrence and May Eddinger, both being in the theatrical profession.

He made his first appearance as a full fledged star in 1910, playing the title role in "Bobby Burnit." One of his greatest successes was "Captain Applejack."

He was twice married. His first wife was Mrs. Ivy La Grove, whom he married in 1915. They were divorced in 1920. In 1924 he married Margaret Lawrence, the actress, who recently applied for a divorce.

H. W. CRAMBLET NAMED TO DR. GERWIG'S POST

H. W. Cramblet, who for 10 years has been assistant secretary of the board of education, will succeed Dr. George W. Gerwig, secretary, who resigned after 37 years of service, it was announced by board members yesterday.

Dr. Gerwig's resignation was accepted "with regret" by the board yesterday. He was highly praised in several brief talks made by board members.

For 20 years Dr. Gerwig was secretary of the school board of old Allegheny City and he had been with the combined educational system since 1911. A testimonial dinner is planned for Dr. Gerwig by a committee of his former associates.

Mr. Cramblet was principal of the Punxsutawney High School at Punxsutawney, Pa., for several years.

Accused of Stealing Capitol Time Clock

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Charged with the theft of a "time clock" from the House of Representatives, James Brixton, 40, has been committed to jail for a hearing before Alderman Windsor. Brixton was arrested yesterday by city police and turned over to state police who have charged him with taking the clock, the property of a watchman at the capitol, while under the influence of liquor.

SET DATES OF GRAFT HEARINGS

Thirty-five of the 40 persons named in informations sworn out by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner as a result of the grand jury investigation, have posted bond before Alderman Thomas [illegible] of the South Side. County detectives are still searching for some of the remaining defendants, several are confined to their homes with sickness and have promised to get bond when able.

Of the 35 that have given bond, several have waived hearing for court trial. Most of the accused persons are demanding hearings, at which time the District Attorney will have to produce evidence similar to that given to [illegible] the grand jury.

Assistant District Attorney George F. E. Langfitt, who is to represent the District Attorney at the aldermanic hearings, will confer with various [illegible] to-day [illegible] the hearings, the first of which probably will be held next week.

Two Walk 26 Miles To Get Married

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 8.—Saying they had walked 26 miles, George L. Moore and Margaret Davies, of Perth, Fayette county, presented themselves at the office of Alderman J. F. Carmichaels and announced they wanted to get married. The alderman complied. They did not have enough money to pay the customary fee, but this did not detract in the least from their expectation of happiness.

Women File Protest On Railroad's Bond

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 8.—Exceptions to a bond of $1,000 filed in condemnation proceedings instituted by the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railways Company in the building of extensions were filed in court here by Mary McClelland Hill and Elizabeth Hill Gault, sisters, of Union township. They claim $1,000 is not sufficient to cover possible damages to their land.

BROOKFIELD, O., Jan. 8.—The New York Central Railroad will open a passenger station here January 15. The station at Tyrrell will be closed and the personnel and equipment moved here. Tyrrell will continue to be a flag stop.

BAIL FORFEITED IN THEFT CASE

When John Sloan, Burley street, was called in Criminal Court to face trial on a robbery and three larceny charges yesterday, he failed to answer. His bail of $8,000 was declared forfeit. John Gobus, 10 Smithfield street, was the bondsman.

Sloan and others were accused of stealing $2,300 worth of jewelry and other articles from the residence of Mrs. Hedwig Grisell, 2100 Spring Garden avenue, and of the theft of a number of automobiles last summer. Police say he was arrested here last November but was acquitted because of lack of evidence. It is also said that Sloan was arrested in Kansas City in December and broke jail.

More Shirts--More Room

This year we are taking advantage of the newly remodeled basement, recently vacated by the Christmas toys, to provide larger quarters for the Shirt Sale. Here more than double the regular department space is available, and the facilities for stocks, display, size arrangement and serving the sale crowds are greatly increased and improved.

Follow the arrows which will point the way from each of the store entrances directly to the sale—just a dozen steps, or so, below the Main Floor.

The standards upon which this sale was built continue—finest possible qualities, strictly fast-color materials, latest models and patterns, custom workmanship, faultless fit and complete sizes. The Men's Store will open an hour earlier than the rest of the store tomorrow for those who want to make selections before going to business.

Frank Klaus Jailed 2 Months in Dry Case

Frank Klaus, former middleweight boxing champion, was committed to jail late Monday afternoon to serve two months for violating the national prohibition law. He pleaded guilty December 12 before Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, selling whisky in his saloon at 620 Braddock avenue, Braddock. Because of the approaching holidays and the defendant's request for time to attend to some business affairs the jail sentence was postponed. Yesterday Klaus surrendered to the United States marshal and was taken to jail. It was Klaus' second offense under the prohibition law. In 1921 he was fined $200 and sentenced to five days in jail.

HENRY A. JONES, DRAMATIST, DIES AT 77

LONDON, Jan. 8—(AP.)—Henry Arthur Jones, dramatist, died at his home in Hampstad tonight. He was 77.

Mr. Jones died of a lung congestion. In the latter years of his life he became a great propagandist, indulging in literary conflicts with George Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells among others. In the bedroom in which he died were hung the framed programs of 50 plays which he had written.

Mr. Shaw, when informed of the death, said:

"I have paid so many tributes to the work of Jones when it was really of some use to him that I do not see any need to pay tribute now when it cannot gratify him. We remained good friends to the last."

Mr. Jones was a member of the Players Club of New York and received the honorary degree of Master of Arts from Harvard University in 1907.

His first play, "A Clerical Error," was published in 1879 and he continued his active career until after the World War. Among his more famous works were "Saints and Sinners," "The Hypocrites," "The Evangelist," "The Lie," and "Cock o' The Walk." During the war he devoted his pen to patriotic subjects and social problems. His reputation was given in Who's Who as "hunting edition."

Man Nearly Drowns Wading After Hat

Peter Zolinski, 33, of 131 Cherry way, Homestead, waded into the icy Monongahela River under Browns Bridge, Homestead, last night, to recover his hat which had blown into the water while he was crossing the bridge. Zolinsky found himself in deep water and saved himself from drowning by grasping a heavy chain fastened at the base of a pier. Homestead police rescued him a short time later.

HERMIT DOCTOR DIES; NEVER TOOK PAY

CRAIG, Col., Jan. 8—(AP.)—A hermit physician who preferred to "live by the side of the road and be a friend to man," in a sparsely settled mountain region of Colorado, is dead.

Dr. B. A. Abrogast, 84, of Juniper, Col., for many years the friend of the sick and unfortunate, succumbed to influenza in Craig and will be buried on the brow of the hill above his lonely cabin in the hills. County commissioners of Moffat county ordered a snowplow to open the seven mile horseback trail to the doctor's residence.

Spurning the modern contrivances of surgery, Dr. Abrogast has ministered to the needs of cowboys and homesteaders for a quarter of a century. His saddle horse carried him to the bedside of his patients. He had no motor car, no operating room, no telephone and no bookkeeping system. Dr. Abrogast never made a charge for his services and lived by the free will offerings of his patients. Generally what payment he received was a side of "hawg" or feed for his horse.

Despite his years, the doctor practiced his profession to the last and only a few weeks ago made his way through three-foot snow drifts to deliver twins to a lonely Douglas Mountain homesteader.

Logiodice Arrested On Lottery Charge

Carmen Logiodice, 34, of Shetland avenue, was arrested in his home last night, charged with operating a lottery. Police served a warrant sworn out in Morals Court on testimony of Charles Conway, of Merson street, one of Logiodice's alleged salesmen. Logiodice probably will be arraigned in court for a hearing today, at which time he will face Conway. Conway had been arrested on complaint of his wife. While Magistrate A. D. Brandon was inquiring into their domestic affairs he was told that Conway worked as a bookkeeper in a pool headquarters.

WHEN you feel that cold coming on—head it off with Bayer Aspirin. Almost everybody knows how these tablets break-up colds—but why not prevent them? Take a tablet or two at the very first sign of a cold and spare yourself a lot of inconvenience and suffering. Do the same when a headache threatens, or when you feel the least twinge of neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or similar pain. Bayer Aspirin is sure relief, as many have discovered. It is quite harmless, as physicians have long declared. It does not affect the heart, so you may take Bayer Aspirin freely. Use as a gargle for sore throat, to remove the infection. You can get the genuine at any drugstore. Bayer Aspirin. Bayer on every package and on each tablet identifies the genuine.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

FINANCE AND LOVE

By EFFIE DELNORD

NATALIE opened the velvet box with a breath-taking feeling of impending danger and there lay a bracelet, an exquisite circlet of platinum filigree, studded with diamonds and sapphires. Natalie's brown eyes swerved past it and fairly bored into the card squeezed in the lid of the velvet box. "Happy birthday, from Aunt Mary." Anger mixed with terror swept through her with such violence that she dashed the box with its bracelet and card to the floor and rushed to the window as if there she might escape from the calamity so close to her heels.

Outside on the campus, defenceless against the rough November winds, loitered little groups of girls discussing, no doubt, the annual Thanksgiving Eve dance. One group in particular caught Natalie's outraged eye. An hour ago she had been sorry for them, these girls who expected no Jims to flaunt before the less fortunate tomorrow. Girls who had to pretend they did not care that no boys were coming for them. Girls who were going to hover together tomorrow night and pretend they had a gorgeous day and were having a great time at the dance. But now, to Natalie, heavy with disaster and disgrace ahead, they seemed smugly safe and outrageously carefree, quite unneedful of her pity.

"To think Aunt Mary would play me such a trick!" she whispered distractedly. "Every birthday a check as long as I can remember and last year it was a hundred dollars—and now when I counted on it and was so sure—a bracelet! I'm done for, that's all. And Jim coming for the day—darling Jim!" It was too much. Natalie turned from the window and flung herself across the bed. She had planned such a sweet day with Jim and he had written that he was so happy to come. Had something to tell her, too, and Natalie, with little warm happy rushes of joy running down her back, knew what it was.

Presently she sat up on the bed and tried to think clearly. There was no one among the girls from whom she could borrow $60 without arousing suspicion. No use to telegraph mother for the money, Natalie was positive that the evening dress fresh out of its box had cut poor mother down to a succession of omelet dinners. To wire Jim for the money—no, she'd sooner face the sorority meeting before the dance and try to explain as many a treasurer has vainly attempted to do. Nobody would believe the story about the expected check from Aunt Mary. The thing would be hushed up and she would be asked not to come back to the college. Next June she would have been graduated. It wasn't just the thought of her mother that brought stinging tears to Natalie's eyes. There was Jim, he knew all about students leaving college in the middle of the term.

"That settles it," Natalie jumped up, "I've got to find a way. If there was only time to pawn the bracelet—or if I knew at which hotel Aunt Mary was staying, though I doubt that she'd spend the money." Happening to glance out the window her eyes fell upon the luckless group of girls. Natalie had fine eyesight, she could see the expression of their faces. They looked, in a word, disgruntled. Slowly, like syrup trickling through a sieve, an idea came to Natalie. Foolish! She brushed it aside. Poor things out there. No, I couldn't sacrifice Jim. Never! I'll face the meeting. No, it's impossible, too. But Jim? Never in the world. But how about somebody else? No, she respected all her boy friends too much, except, perhaps, Austin Potter. Toward Austin she had always nourished a good healthy hate. The way he treated Amanda, always breaking dates with her and grumbling about her hats. Poor, dear, foolish, loyal Amanda.

Jim disliked Austin, in fact most people in Natalie's home town not far from the college, did. Austin was the kind of a man who had to buy his friends. Everybody else called him a brag and a bully, though Natalie's pet name for him was pest.

"I hope," thought Natalie cheerfully as she pulled on her coat, "this won't interfere with any of Amanda's plans, but no doubt if she has a date with Austin, he'd break it anyway in the last minute."

Then minutes later at the village station Natalie filled out two telegram blanks. One read—Don't come tomorrow. Everything cancelled. Sorry, Natalie." And the second—Will you come for our Thanksgiving Eve festivities? Be here in the morning. Wire reply. Natalie Bourne."

In a roadster borrowed from one of the Jimless girls Natalie met Austin at the station the next morning at 10. He was beaming.

"This is great, Natalie! I certainly gave Jim Weeks the ha-ha this morning. Met on the way to the station and from the way the poor fellow breathed I believe he thought he was coming here!"

Natalie almost ditched the car. "What rotten luck!" but she meant that Austin happened to meet Jim.

At the campus she stopped the roadster and sliding out from behind the wheel said, "So sorry, Austin, I have a class, but here is Mildred, she'll show you the sights. By-by!" And was off.

Austin was a little taken back but Mildred was so sweet and talkative and seemed so tremendously proud to be out with him that he could not help being flattered.

After a two hours drive Mildred stopped the car, "Let me introduce you to Peg, she'll take you to lunch. I'm so sorry, but I have a class."

After lunch Austin suggested a round of golf but Peg said, "Oh, here's Kitty, she loves golf and I have a class, I must hurry."

People in Natalie's home town said afterward that Austin came back a changed man. He was curiously subdued, less confident and really altogether rather likable. His intimates remarked that there was an odd absent-minded look in his eye as if he was trying to figure something out in vain.

Natalie being one of the fortunate who could go home for Thanksgiving dinner telegraphed Jim to be at the station, but when she arrived there was no Jim and she stepped forlornly into a taxi.

Dinner with all the fixings and relatives came and went, but no Jim appeared nor telephoned. A terrible afternoon dragged by. At supper time Natalie swallowed her pride and telephoned the Weeks home only to be told Jim was out.

One of Natalie's uncles asked, "Going to the Country Club dance tonight, Natalie?" She had dreamed of going with Jim, but now she shook her head. "Oh, come along with me'" he coaxed.

Jim was there with a polite frigid bow. Natalie returned it with an offhand little nod, and then after the manner of unhappy girls became tremendously gay. Everybody asked her to dance except Jim. Even Austin Pooter, who was there with Amanda. Natalie seeing the questioning queer look in Austin's eyes refused and flew to the sun parlor, meaning to have a good cry behind a sheltering palm. As it happened the settee upon which she flung herself was already occupied by Jim. Neither said a word. Jim thought, "I'll be darned if I'll speak first!" and Natalie decided, "He's as stubborn as a mule, but I won't give in!"

When fully 20 minutes of complete silence had passed somebody spoke, almost in their ear back of the palm. "I can't understand it, Amanda, and I'm only telling you. First I was flattered having a new girl every two hours, each excusing herself because she had a class. But in the train back when I heard a girl say that there hadn't been a class all day—well, what do you make of it? Couldn't those girls stand my company any longer than two hours? Listen, Amanda—" and the voice wandered off.

Afterwards Jim said he spoke first, but Natalie claimed she did. "I had to raise $60 by 8 o'clock and I hired Austin Potter out at so much per hour! Oh, don't look so shocked!"

"Shocked! Why—I'm knocked silly by discovering such a financial genius in the girl I want to marry!"

TORTURED FOR TWO LONG YEARS

Local Lady's Stomach Trouble Ended by Ten Herbs; Other Medicines Failed.

Many local men and women are declaring that the great natural medicine, Ten Herbs, gave them relief from long suffering after many other medicines had failed. Some state that the way Ten Herbs ends disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels actually is amazing. As a result, many interesting—and some remarkable—experiences are being related to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this successful new herbal compound to crowds of persons who are eager to learn what this medicine has done for other sufferers.

"To say that I have been benefited by Ten Herbs is making a very mild statement of the facts," was the recent statement of Mrs. Lavina Kelly, 1331 Nakomis Street, Sheridan, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man. "During the past two years I tried different kinds of medicines for stomach trouble, but never got satisfactory results until I started using Ten Herbs," Mrs. Kelly continued. "I was tortured by indigestion. Gas would form and cause pains to shoot around my heart—at times I was almost suffocated. There also were terrible pains in my back and limbs. All these troubles, together with dizziness, would make me feel so bad that I would nearly faint.

"Ten Herbs put an end to all these troubles—no more indigestion, or gas pains. I might add that I was underweight before taking your medicine, but now my weight has increased from 128 to 143 pounds, which is about normal. Ten Herbs has benefited me so much that I feel it is only justice to your medicine for me to make this statement. I am pleased to endorse Ten Herbs to other sufferers."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

Woman Wins 5-Year Suit for Insurance

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 8—Battling for five years for $1,500 life insurance carried by her husband, Ralph Goldsboro, who was murdered by Fred Grimm, in a street duel at Fairchance, Mrs. Blanche Goldsboro has been awarded $1,900 by the local branch of the Protective Insurance Company, of Boston. Goldsboro was killed when he returned home unexpectedly and found Grimm there. The Fayette County Court awarded Mrs. Goldsboro $1,663.50, but the award was reversed on a technicality by the Superior Court. Rather than participate in further legal action, the insurance company agreed to a settlement.

CLAIBORNE FOSTER'S "GYPSY," A CHARMING BUTTERFLY, TURNS ON THE GAS

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

PSYCHOANALYSIS had its innings at the Nixon Theater last night when the dramatist Maxwell Anderson and the charming Miss Claiborne Foster dissected the butterfly soul of a lady whose name is Ellen, who has read Karl Marx and Gibbon's "Decline and Fall," but who can't say "Don't!" when some eligible male imprints an errant kiss upon her lips. The play is called "Gypsy," which is the title the heroine's husband once conferred upon her. She has a roving heart and an unlimited capacity for loving consecutively and simultaneously.

"God help the poor unfortunate who'll fall for Ellen," her husband says. The drama is full of poor unfortunates—there is one before the first act, and one telephones in the last act just in time to save the poor heroine's life. That seems to call for a fourth act, played on a merry-go-round.

Really, Maxwell Anderson has come very close to writing a great drama in the style of that amiable Scandinavian Ironist Ibsen. During the second act, when the butterfly mother of the butterfly Ellen tries to warn and help her daughter, the shadow of the hardy Norseman seems to fall across the stage. That is a marvelous scene, marvelously played by Miss Foster and Mary Young as the mother. And most of the drama keeps close to the high tide mark of that scene.

TELL WITH NO REASON

If one has doubts about it, they obtrude at the beginning, when Gypsy's husband tells some of the other characters: "I don't know why I'm telling you all this." Nobody knows. But it tells it just the same. The same doubts creep in during the last act, when Gypsy feels an irresistible urge to tell her lover the truth about herself. She seems to consider it her duty, her destiny, and her delight not only to be unhappy herself but to make those unhappy who love her.

There are such women—women who drift and flutter, who struggle and collapse, who read D. H. Lawrence and hate to be reminded that they have husbands. Maxwell Anderson has painted a true soul portrait, and Claiborne Foster has given it an original embodiment of subtle reality. But the unfortunate element of the situation is that such a character lacks the dynamic force of drama. One wonders where she got the strength to turn on the gas.

The same is true of her husband, David, who is so forgiving that he finally slams the door. Lester Vail plays that part with fine reticence and tact, but he cannot quite convince us that such a noble creature exists in captivity. Like Fenimore Cooper's Indians, he is too good to be true.

So also Mae and Sylvia, racy comedy characterizations given by Wallace Ford and Ruth Findlay, when they administer good advice to Gypsy Ellen about true love and happiness do not convince her. The play ends where it began—and perhaps Ellen is fated to go the way her mother went. The three acts merely show the germ-plasm of some remote ancestor's loyalty working in the environment of the flapper and feminist.

NEAR TO BEING GREAT

It is an experiment in dramatic psychoanalysis that comes right close to being great drama. It reveals an emotional actress of genuine charm and unhackneyed method. Miss Foster's vivacious personality shines through her impersonation; she is a lovely butterfly, a winged flower, and a conscience without ballast. She and Mary Young lift this drama above the plane of satiric comedy into the realm of the higher realism. But the driving force of great drama isn't there. Perhaps what Gypsy Ellen needs is a husband or a lover who will beat her.

Then it wouldn't be feministic—it wouldn't be psychoanalysis—it might be as old-fashioned as "Othello." This is A. D. 1929. The author is Maxwell Anderson. Shaw's Candida is a grandmother now. And so one wishes well to "Gypsy" because she is so charming and so real.

PLAYERS SEEN :-: ON STAGE AND SCREEN :-: IN NEW BILLS

Howard Thurston, magician, presents his new illusions on Pitt stage.

Nancy Drexel is seen in "Prep and Pep," photoplay feature in Aldine.

CHANEY ROLE WEIRD IN PENN

Lon Chaney, who, in recent pictures, has approached sufficiently close to being human as to cause some apprehension lest he may have reformed, is normally abnormal again. His role of "Dead Legs" Flint, in "West of Zanzibar," in which he is seen on the Penn screen, harks back to his Frog Man of "The Miracle Man" for a physical counterpart and to several of his cruel characterizations for the soul picture he portrays. In a word, it is his best role and his most Chaney-like role in a long time. The picture, too, is gripping in interest, though its theme will be more or less familiar to those who saw the "Shanghai Gesture" on the stage, a theme in which the central character, for revenge, makes a girl, supposed daughter of the person hated, the medium of vengeance, and then finds the victim to be his own flesh and blood. The scene of the story is in Africa, with Chaney as a voodoo white master of the natives, whose soul is as crippled as his body, both the result of a great wrong done to him. Chaney carries off all the honors. As great an actor as Lionel Barrymore is unable to steal the play at any time even though he does good work, too. Mary Nolan, in her screen debut, makes good as the girl. African scenes are weird and very well simulate the quality of authenticity. On the stage, Ferry Corwey is a feature of "Topsy-Turvy Town." He is a musical clown. Various specialties and dancing by the Gamby-Hale Girls are presented. Tschaikowsky's "Overture 1812" is played by the orchestra, Elias Breeskin conducting.

Academy Show Offers Variety

HARRIS FILM HAS STAGE THEME

"Show Folks," a Photophone sound production, is the current screen feature in the Harris. It presents a picture of backstage life and resembles somewhat the stage play, "Burlesque." But it is not in the class of the foothight drama, even though the story was written by the author of the stage play. Eddie Quillan, former North Side boy, does a good job of the hero role—that of a sweet-headed, small time hoofer. Lina Basquette, fair on the acting and good at the dancing, plays the feminine lead. There is a talking sequence or so. The big "kick" on the vaudeville bill is Hal Neiman, who comes along with his hobo makeup and mixes popular tunes and words in a way that gets the laughs. He got a "big hand" at the opener yesterday. Phil and Phibra present a clever act of dance and acrobatics. Phil flings himself around in the air and seems to enjoy it all as much as the audience does. Which is saying quite a lot for the act. Morton, Jewell and company, including two men and two women, entertain with a mixture of song, dance and juggling. Then there's an act, "Scholars," which is on the revue order. Getting back to the screen, the bill includes a talking specialty that features the humorist, Bob Benchley. News pictures, with sound, also are on the bill.

Emil Jannings Enright Star

Herr Emil Jannings is in the Enright, East End, this week. His picture is "The Sins of the Fathers." It all demonstrates once again what the Good Book says about the sins of the fathers being visited upon the sons. In the drama, Jannings has one of those German-American roles so suited to his ability. But, as usual, his talents outclass the movie story.

From a waiter Jannings rises to proprietorship of a saloon. Gay lover of life, he loves some things too well and the shock of his behavior brings death to his wife. But a young son and daughter aren't motherless long, for he brings a scheming stepmother into the home. Time and the fashions of two decades ago pass. The children grow up. Prohibition comes. Jannings rises to a giant figure in the bootleg world and spills poison liquor all over New York. Then comes the crash—the son goes blind, money fades and prison doors swing wide. All this, you realize, gives Mr. Jannings a keen chance to play a symphony with the human emotions.

And the movie makers have been kind to Emil. For this time they allow him to live, and to smile, and to get philosophical. He says "Life is a wheel; when you've been all around you're at the beginning again." Ruth Chatterton, stage star, makes her movie debut in the film—in the role of the stepmother. Barry Norton does a good piece of work in the part of the son.

NEW SCOTCH COMEDIAN IN DAVIS

Sir Harry Lauder has a rival at the Davis Theater this week—Will Fyffe, who impersonates a ship's engineer and a workingman half seas over with much broader humor than Sir Harry could command. Whether Fyffe could equal Sir Harry in the tender and pathetic strain may be doubted, but for rollicking character comedy Fyffe is entitled to a wreath of heather. His stories of how he won the medal and how he spilled the soup produced genuine and spontaneous laughter, while the allusion to the new Hook-an'-Eye Society evoked long guffaws. Fyffe is a welcome addition to the variety of vaudeville. There are other good things in the Davis program, especially Chic York and Rose King, who have furbished up their "Family Tin Type" act till it's as good as new, if not better. Tom and Ray Romain play twins in a honeymoon sketch aboard ship that is amusing without being over-brilliant. Then there is a very good dancing and singing revue, headed by Billy Dunn and Violet West, with four girl violinists providing melody, and Marie Wells the vocal art. The Corelli Sisters have rich voices and know how to use them, but make a mistake by turning to so-called popular songs instead of more classic numbers in which they excel. Sylvia Clark made a hit in songs and patter of merrier sort, while Madie and Ray present a rope-spinning act both novel and charming. Harry Faber and Lata Wales have some very droll chatter, and the five De Cardos somersault in and out of barrels in bewildering fashion. However, the big feature of the bill remains, Will Fyffe, a low comedy Scotchman, who takes the haggis.

Aldine Shows Amusing Bill

There is a talking specialty film in the Aldine this week that rivals the feature photoplay for honors. It is a dramatic playlet, titled "Confession." It has to do with an American doughboy, dying, who confesses to having killed a superior officer, for whose death a fellow soldier has been falsely convicted. The irony of it all is that no one but two French women, who cannot understand English, hear the confession. It is all quite dramatic and is very well done. The feature picture is "Prep and Pep," a refreshing and altogether entertaining drama of youth's experience at "prep" school. The scenes take place at the Culver Military Academy, where a famous athlete's son is sent to complete his education. Unlike his sport-loving father, the lad is the "mama's boy" type and the story has to do with his transformation into the school's hero. A fire scene, with a thrill or two, makes the climax. David Rollins and Nancy Drexel head the cast. The bill also includes three other sound and talk specialty films—a comedy playlet with Hedda Hopper, a song act by Mildred Harris and a musical presentation by Dick Rich, rotund singer and band leader, and his orchestra.

THURSTON'S MAGIC SHOWS GIVE PITT AUDIENCE PLEASANT EVENING

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

FOR an evening of genuine entertainment that leaves no bad taste in the mouth or any dubious reflections about any part of it there is nothing like a good dose of magic to make one aware that the stage still retains one of its wholesome forms of amusement undefiled by any modern tendancy in the theater. Such amusement is that furnished by Thurston, magician extraordinary, who is in the Pitt this week. Thurston opened his engagement last night in the presence of an audience that enjoyed his exhibition as much as if he were here for the first time instead of the twenty-fifth season. He has a number of new illusions and an assistant magician, if you please, no one else but his own daughter, Jane, charming miss of 17, of whom her daddy is justly proud.

One of Thurston's illusions was so new that it was not even listed on the program. Presented for the first time on any stage, it was called by its originator "The Million Dollar Mystery," described by the magician as a manifestation of the effect of light rays.

NO, HE WOULDN'T FOOL!

Although he said with great earnestness that he wouldn't deceive us, we tell him now that we believe there was something more substantial than light connected with that particular mystery. Presented, it revealed a box frame open on all sides, top and bottom. The sides were sheets of colored glass. One by one they were subjected to the illumination test and then attached to the frame to make a complete box mounted on legs, the box being about two feet square.

First Thurston inserted through the top a large bucket, never releasing the handle, then taking it out full of water. Next spooky faces appeared behind the glass. Followed the appearance of a face, that of a girl who later appeared through the top in full figure. Finally a side panel was opened and a box about four times as long as any dimension of the glass cabinet was fed into it and it all went in. Then the front panel was opened and the box was drawn out, the lid was removed, and a young woman emerged. The trick is described in detail because it is Mr. Thurston's newest illusion, reserved for first presentation here.

BLACK ART BEWILDERS

For the rest of the performance brevity must suffice. It consists of a bewildering array of the art of the magician, making use of animals, from guinea pigs and rabbits to a donkey and lion. The grand finale is the instant disappearance of an automobile with seven young girls as passengers. It is in full view until the moment it vanishes—seemingly in the air. A wizard, surely, this Thurston.

For last mention has been reserved Miss Jane. She contributes a song, "My Dad Is a Hocus-Pocus Man," skillful dancing and a little magic act all her own, without the assistance of dad. In magic she is a chip off the old block but she can do one thing that dad can't. That is her dance. She is as charming as she is graceful and her appearance gives the Thurston show a touch of variety that makes it doubly pleasing.

Sheridan Has Acts and Film

Eddie Quillan, former Pittsburgh boy, heads the cast of the sound and talking feature in the Sheridan Square the first three days of this week. It is "Show Folks," which presents a romance of life behind the curtain, where the "hoofer," the "feeder," the old trouper, the talent scout and baby-doll vamp play their parts in the game of theatrical life. Bob Benchley, humorist, is heard in the talking film specialty, "The Treasurers' Report." The stage vaudeville features Dick Coy and his racketeers, making whoopee with their jazz music. Dalton and Craig offer a comedy skit. Capt. Dohan and company and other acts complete the bill.

STANLEY BILL CLARA BOW, ACTS

With Clara Bow in "Three Week Ends," on the screen, and an elaborate stage presentation, "Cabaret Nights," on the stage, the Stanley this week is offering a bill that has merit from beginning to end. Miss Bow has another typical Bow role in "Three Week Ends," which is by Elinor Glyn, but is no relation to the same author's "Three the night was piercing. The cutting wind blew on my bearded and dirty face with an ineffable sensation of a bath. I turned over again in my mind the memory of the fall and the anxiety of the last hours of the flight.

NOBILE, SAFE, THOUGHT ONLY OF HIS MEN

Science Does Miracle

How many events, how much suffering impossible to speak of, during those 30 days, but now at last the great, terrible and unique adventure approached its end. My companions and I, one by one, were about to return to the civilized world. Wireless and aviation had accomplished this miracle.

I gazed again at the expanse of icy wilderness, broken by crevices and small canals. Now we were approaching the islands Foyn and Broch. I moved to look at them with some curiosity. They had been a lighthouse for us in the ocean of ice. We had spoken of them about 10 times a day. All our hopes had been centered on these little specks of land.

Behold the island of Foyn. A hilly mass covered with snow with greyish patches as if high rocks were underneath. In a corner was a small mirror of free water where a hydroplane could alight.

Schyberg showing me the map explained: "Here to the south of the island we have seen, these last days, traces of men. These traces were followed for some miles, then they suddenly disappeared and instead appeared numerous traces of bears."

My thoughts flew to the three companions who had left us on the thirtieth of May. Were these traces theirs? Where were they now?

These were Prof. Finn Malmgrem, the Swedish scientist, and Capts. Mariano and Zappi. Malmgrem perished; Mariano and Zappi were rescued by the Russian ice breaker Krassin.

It was cold. Schyberg, thoughtfully, obliged me to retire into a corner of the bottom of the cockpit, covering me with a cloth as best he could. I got him to show me on the map where we were to descend. Then immersed in my thoughts, I waited for the end of the short fantastic flight. A little more than an hour passed. I felt the motor slowing down. We descended. A start and the rustle of the skiis on the snow. We had landed.

Gets Joyous Greeting

I leaned out my head to look. The place was deserted, the ground covered with snow. I saw coming to meet us, three strangers, tall, slim, in the uniform of aviators. They greeted me joyously. They helped me to descend from the plane, then taking me by the arms they carried me for perhaps half a kilometer (about a third of a mile) along the sea-coast, to where two hydroplanes were moored.

On the beach the snow, which had gradually melted, had almost quite disappeared. Among the pebbles yellowish pieces of driftwood were scattered about.

Two or three more young aviators awaited us. One of theim attended to the heating of food on a petrol stove. Here and there lay some fur sleeping-sacks and a few provisions. In the middle a wood fire burned gaily.

They placed me on the ground. Then perceiving that I was cold, they wrapped a scarf around my throat and delicately put me in a sack, taking care not to hurt my wounds. They were all around me, full of kind solicitude. They gave me food and drink. Some one offered me a cigaret. I took it and smoked for the first time in seven years.

Meanwhile I gazed stupified at the singular sense. It seemed as if I were in a dream. Those tall strangers with blue eyes, who smilingly moved around me recalled confusedly to my memory some mythological legends. Perhaps they appeared to me as some young demi-gods, dwellers on that deserted beach.

Lundborg and Christell, spoke to me: "You know. We flew with our planes to greet you over Stockholm when the "Italia" came up to Spitzenbergen." I then remembered the Swedish hydroplanes which had come to meet our dirigible and had flown joyfully around us.

"Yes. I remember, we took some pictures of your planes. Some day I will give them to you."

Hears of More Aid

Then Tornberg, the chief, spoke to me: "I am happy that you are here. It was necessary. Up to now we have had great difficulty. Things will go well, better now with you here. We will be able to continue the search for the Mariano group and also for the dirigible.

"Your presence will render it much easier. The Citta di Milano is about to reach Virgo Bay and in a few hours the "Quest" will be here. We shall join with the captain in deciding what to do." The "Quest" was the ship supporting the Swedish expedition.

I was a little distracted on hearing him speak. My thoughts flew to the five companions remaining behind in the tent. They were waiting for Lundborg to return.

"When do you go?" I asked. "Soon," replied Lundborg and his somewhat sunburnt face was illumined with a beautiful smile.

Then finally he rose: "I am going." I saw him disappear together with some others. Mutely, I accompanied him with my good wishes.

Tornberg, Christell and the other officers remained with me. They laid themselves down in their fur sleeping sacks to sleep, after having wished me a good repose. In the midst of our row of sacks the yellowish driftwood fire continued to burn brightly.

But sleep would not come. I was too excited. A thousand thoughts flitted through my mind. I saw Lundborg arrive at the landing ground near the tent and leave with Cecioni. In a little he would be here. And then the others, one after the other. I imagined I could see them asleep in fur sleeping sacks on my right, one after the other in a row. When they will have all arrived, I thought, I will join with them in silently raising our faces to heaven to render thanks from the depths of our hearts for this return to life; and then we shall kiss the earth. The good solid earth which we so anxiously looked for during the last hours of flight.

So I fantastically anticipated the joys of the solemn moment when I should see, in safety, my dear companions, with whom I had shared so much suffering an emotion.

Rescuers Sleep Soundly

As the hours passed my nervousness grew. I looked impatiently at my watch making a calculation of hours. Then I turned to look at the Swedes. I was astonished they could sleep so tranquilly; their deep breathing resounded in the quiet of the place accompanied by the wash of the sea against the hydroplanes.

A little cry of alarm broke the silence; one of th fur sleeping sacks too near the fire had caught allight and when it was put out all turned silently to sleep again.

I waited. I waited with a overgrowing anxiety.

Suddenly I started, the hum of a motor fell on my ears. I awoke Christell, who put his head outside his sack and sat up. A hydroplane appeared in the sky. Christell looked and then told me calmly: "The Fokker with Lundborg has capsized; but the aviator is unhurt," and tranquilly laid himself down again.

It was a tremendous blow. Then I was separated from my companions. They had still to remain there, and who knew for how long, and Lundborg was a prisoner together with them. All my joy was suddenly changed to grief. An indescribable anguish seized my heart.

Then I took heart. I braced myself up against misfortune. I looked reality in the face. It was necessary to act; to examine coldly the situation and decide what to do. My companions and Lundborg himself awaited, full of confidence in me. I felt that they were tranquil because I was here. There was, therefore, no time to lose. I must overcome my anguish, restrain my feelings and act.

I turned to Tornburg. He had now come to lie next to me. His sweet and pensive glance inspired me with a deep sympathy. "What is to be done now? Has the Swedish expedition any other airplanes fitted with skids which can go there?" There were no others. There was, however, a Finnish apparatus being put in order.

Need Light Airplanes

"But the best thing," said Tornberg, "is to get some small sporting airplanes. The Moth type would be useful. They can be got in England. You must ask the Italian government for them at once. Meanwhile, it is certain that the Swedish government will do all that it possibly can."

Then I was preoccupied with what my companions lacked. The hydroplanes had brought them many things, but some essential things were wanting. Above all some pemmican which I had often asked for in vain was badly needed. I spoke of it to Tornberg. He told me that the Swedish expedition had some and that very evening it would be sent.

Then Tornberg asked me if I wished to await the arrival of the "Quest," which had been delayed but which would arrive in a few hours. "No, it is better not to lose time. I would like to go at once on board the Citta di Milano."

And so Tornberg and Christell took me in one of their hydroplanes to Virgo Bay.

Weeks," having nothing to do with royalty. That is, unless a queen of dance be royal, and, truth to tell, Miss Bow does make her character right regal. Almost anybody will be willing to admit Miss Bow is a queen, even off the screen, and is that, plus, when she adds her beauty to film entertainment. There is both romance and comedy in "Three Week Ends." Neil Hamilton and Ford Harrison play the leading male roles "Cabaret Nights" is a mixture of song, dance and comedy in which we cannot identify the artists for you. But there is a very good singing comedian who proves to be a twin, adding weird comedy to his singing in a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde characterization. Also a young woman who sings quite well, a couple of dancers, the woman throwing herself at the man, a dainty little toe dancer, a dozen dancing girls in ensemble and a male singing trio playing violin, mandolin and guitar for good measure—or playing these instruments and singing for good measure. Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony finale is the overture, well done under the direction of David Broudy. There also is short screen entertainment including Vitaphone and Movietone news.

Regent Shows "Waterfront"

Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall are co-featured in the farce comedy "Waterfront," current in the Regent. Miss Mackaill is cast as the daughter of a tugboat captain, who yearns for a life on the bounding main. Then Mulhall, in the guise of a seaman, enters her life, and from then on the complications, with the girl's ambition and Jack's desire to buy a farm and desert the sea, provide entertainment.

Olympic Film Features Holt

Another Zane Grey story, featuring Jack Holt, opened in the Olympic yesterday. "Avalanche" is the name of the picture. The theme of "Avalanche" centers around the affection of two men for each other and the romantic problem which threatens to estrange them. The most spectacular scene in the film provides the crisis of the story, a whole mountain side being shown in a great avalanche. Doris Hill and Baclanova are in the cast.

Dove, Moreno In Grand Film

Billie Dove and Antonio Moreno head the cast of "Adoration," this week's photoplay in the Grand. Miss Dove has the role of a Russian princess and Moreno is seen as a prince—that is, until the Red revolution sweeps over the land. Later, scenes shift to Paris and Antonio is seen as a waiter. Short features on the bill include Vitaphone specialties.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Night-Prowling Husbands.

HELEN ROWLAND

EVERY married woman's heart probably went out in sympathy to that woman who recently applied for a divorce because her husband would not put out the light and go to sleep nights.

Only a woman who has blinked her life away beside a night-prowler knows what "refined cruelty" in its most ingenious and intensive form is like.

Why has a man this rite-provoking instinct from some of his predecessors, or acquires it from never going to bed during his bachelor days, no woman knows. But it is the domestic third degree through which seven wives out of ten are put, every night from the wedding day to the grave.

It is the main cause of twin beds, companionate marriage, husband-shooting, and most of the travel to Reno.

It is the secret sorrow which has caused many a devoted little wife to spend a lot of time wondering wistfully what a divorce would cost.

A man can think of more things that he wants to read, eat, say or do, after 10 p. m. than in all the rest of the day put together.

He may doze off in his armchair immediately after dinner and remain in a state of semi-coma all through the sprightly "home evening." But at the stroke of 12, when his wife's eyelids begin to droop and he hears her winding the clock, he is a perfect little Bright Eyes, and as full of playfulness as a kitten.

Many a man who is "too tired to eat a mouthful" at dinner time, develops a fine, healthy appetite around midnight, and insists on going out and raiding the icebox, or cooking himself a hearty supper.

Many a man has acquired his whole acquaintance with the classics at the expense of his wife's beauty sleep. Any girl who can't sleep with a bed-light shining in her eyes, had better be wary of marrying the man who brags that he reads himself to sleep every night.

Where DID men get this atavistic habit of prowling around the place all night?

Apparently the average man can never go to sleep until he is convinced that his wife has reached that stage of nervous tension, where she won't be able to close her eyes for the rest of the night. Then he can roll right over and drop off into a sweet symphonic slumber, that will last until long after the alarm clock has gone off.

Half a woman's life is spent in wailing, "Oh, won't you go to bed, dear!" and the other half in shouting, "For heaven's sake, GET UP!"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Hope Held Out for Diabetes Sufferers

IN THE United States, if a recent statement may be accepted, there are at least a million persons who have diabetes. That means that one out of a hundred has this disease. If you live in a village with a thousand population, there are 10 persons who suffer from diabetes.

DR. COPELAND

I just read a new book devoted to this subject. In his preface the author said in an admirable way what you have in mind right now if you are afraid of this disease. Listen, I quote:

"When a person is suddenly told that he has diabetes, he is usually overwhelmed by the news. Often such a person feels that this is the end of everything; of his life's plans, his ambitions. He feels like a person who is condemned to the gallows, never again to taste the sweetness of freedom, and with certain death at the end of his period of imprisonment."

But this is not the true picture by any means. The disease is the effect of the victim's violations of certain of nature's laws. The author points out that "in part, at least, the damage may be repaired; how to cope with it is the patient's, rather than the physician's, problem; and consequently how absolutely necessary it is for the patient as well as for the doctor to understand the nature of the disease and the principles of its treatment."

Those are sensible words. Indeed, they strike me as things to be said about other diseases, too. I regard it as important for Mr. Average Man to understand the nature of all diseases. Then he will be prepared not to treat disease, of course, but to cooperate with his doctor. When he understands the principles of the treatment of disease, he will help the doctor by intelligent application of the treatment.

To know really what any disease is, we must learn a few things about anatomy and physiology. This is particularly true of diabetes. To understand that we must learn with the pancreas.

This is the organ popularly known as the "sweetbread." It lies in the middle of the abdomen, behind and below the stomach. It is a narrow but long structure, really a gland.

Running through the pancreas is a passageway, a duct, which opens into the intestine, not far below the opening of the stomach into the intestine. There are many smaller passageways opening into the main duct.

Through this drainage system the pancreas discharges into the intestine a juicy fluid, the "pancreatic juice." This substance plays an important part in promoting digestion.

The average person regards the pancreas as the chief organ of digestion. As a matter of fact, it is in the small intestine that the most important parts of the digestive processes are performed. The pancreatic juice and bile play a vital part in this matter.

If the pancreas were split in two, there would be seven lbs. of tissue, each a pound in size. The latter I have quoted simply to refer to the patches of tissue known as the "islands of Langerhans."

You need not attempt to remember that, but you are interested in learning that when a portion of the pancreas is destroyed or impaired in such a way that it no longer produces the substance called "insulin" and without a sufficient supply there is the disturbance known as diabetes. The cells of the body are unable to handle foods without the aid of insulin. The control and treatment of diabetes is founded on this fact.

There are two chief causes for this organ to fail. The first one is a disease of the pancreas itself, like mumps and scarlet fever. The second cause is a disease of the pancreas.

Today I can say more than ever before that proper dieting and medical treatment of diabetes can live out a reasonable expectation. He can continue to be a useful member of society.

Penn. Boy Needed Help

Daniel Sullivan, 1107 Spruce St., Philadelphia, was irregular, feverish, active, full of life—as at the top of his classes at school. To meet him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness, but his mother says: "When he was a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and pale.

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup, he improved right away. He took it and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have always kept Fig Syrup with him ever since. It's sold for upset spells, for it is pleasant tasting so even children like it, and it helps him wonderfully."

California Fig Syrup has been a trusted standby in many homes for 50 years. It is pleasant to take, recommended by physicians, and works with the natural tone and action of the stomach and bowels to relieve them of their full nourishment, to rid them of foul and waste in a normal, healthful way.

Four million users annually attest to its merit. Always look for the word "California" on the package when you are getting the genuine.

LOVE IS RING MASTER

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

DAN CUPID is a most versatile chap! He's all things to all people. But what we're chiefly concerned about today is the fact that we've at last discovered Dan's favorite role. And that is—Ring Master!

How he loves to stand on the side lines and direct the activities of all those whom he has chosen to perform in his show! How he cracks the whip and calls his orders and watches the antics of those who are in the ring! Oh, he loves all this, Dan does. And the best part of the whole performance is that the actors love it just as much as Daniel.

Sometimes others try to usurp his place, and then what a sorry mix-up occurs. As soon as someone else tries to put the actors through their paces and attempts to tell them what they MUST and must NOT do—oh, dear! I hate to think of it!

You see, Dan actually calls himself "Ring Master," but truly he's really the only matchmaker in the world. The Ring is but a part of the scheme, but it sounds so much more dignified than making matches. And yet, this is part of his job. He only gets mad when someone else takes a hand in the matches which he has arranged. And he works so hard then to see that the two whom he has chosen shall step into the circle of the ring which is to bind them forever.

So, watch your step. Don't antagonize this lovable Ring Master! For he resents it keenly and punishes all those who attempt to imitate him!

Madge and Dicky Conspire to Supply Mary With Funds

IT took me but a few minutes to decide what I must do temporarily with Mary Harrison's pictorial problem. Indeed, the decision was but a matter of seconds. The rest of the time I had filched from my breakfast allowance was spent in scoring myself severely that I had not realized the scanty dress equipment possessed by my husband's lovely young niece. Now that Marion's impetuous generosity had opened my eyes, I looked back over the spring and summer, and saw that though Mary had managed her clothing so well that she always was attractive—even chic—yet she had had a scanty outfit, indeed, with which to work.

One facet of the problem troubled me sorely, but I knew that I must put it aside for mulling over when I should have returned from Marion's shopping trip. That was the reason for Mary's meager wardrobe and her comment to Marion that she was not going to buy "even a handkerchief" upon the shopping trip. I knew that her aunt Harriet Braithwaite supplied her with a liberal allowance. What was the child doing with it?

That question must wait, however. With something more urgent upon me, I put on my hat, and taking up my purse, gloves and coat, I hurried down the hall to Dicky's room, knowing from experience that he would not yet have gone down to breakfast—when he is making a train he always cuts the time to the closest possible limit.

He was coming out of his door as I reached it, and his face clouded with impatience.

"Yes, I know what time it is," he said tartly. "Yes, I'm going to have plenty of time for breakfast. Yes, I'm going to make that train if you don't hinder me."

It was not a propitious moment to put the request I had framed, but I had no alternative.

"You're wrong this time," I said gayly turning and hurrying with him toward the stairs. "I wasn't going to say one of those things. But I must delay you a few seconds to tell you something important."

He scowled as he stopped.

"It must be important to risk missing the train."

"It is," I retorted, lowering my voice almost to a whisper. "Dicky, I've found out that Mary hasn't bought herself any clothes for months. She's positively shabby, and she told Marion just now she couldn't get herself even a handkerchief."

"What the devil!" Dicky exploded. "Why Harriet and Edwin—"

"Yes, I know," I interposed, "but we can't go into that right now. The child must have some frocks and things right away. I haven't any money that I can get at today—"

"I wouldn't stand for your spending it on Mary if you did have," Dicky retorted. "She happens to be my niece, you know. How much do you think she ought to have—a hundred?"

"Mary will do wonders with that, she's a good shopper," I answered. "But, Dicky, I want you to give it to her. Just say that you understand Marion is going shopping for school, and you want her to get herself some things, too. You're always so generous to her—and all of us—that she won't suspect I've noticed she wasn't buying anything."

"Thanks for the beet greens," Dicky answered, "and come down to breakfast. I'll have to cash a check when we get into the city. Then I'll slip her the bills when I can get her by herself."

"I'll see that the shopping expedition doesn't start until you've had the chance to see her," I promised, and then we went on down to the dining room to find Lillian, Harry and Marion there, but no sign of Mary.

Dicky looked at his watch.

"Nine minutes until we have to start," he said impatiently.

"I can eat my breakfast in three if necessary," I told him truthfully. "Go on with yours. I'll see what is delaying Mary."

But Dicky's niece dashed into the room before I had reached the door, her hat over one ear, her large purse swinging open with its contents perilously near a tumble. I closed it for her, and smiled lovingly at the voluble excuses she gave for being late. It was when I was following the rest through the semi-darkened hall to the car that my foot struck against something soft. Picking it up I saw that it was Mary's bankbook and folding checkbook, patently fallen from her purse in her mad rush for the dining room.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Proper Gifts

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it proper for a young man to give a girl a hope chest as a gift?

2. Is it proper that he should put things in it, such as linens, silver and so forth?

C. M. W.

YES, if they are engaged.

2. This is not customary, but there would be some kinds of presents, especially in the nature of silver, that would be consistent.

Engraving Silver

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please advise me through your column what initials are proper on flat silver after marriage? I have almost a complete set, which I received as a wedding gift with my maiden initials, and I have recently added a number of pieces to the set and I am not quite sure if it is proper for to continue my maiden initials on the additional pieces, or should I use my marriage initials?

MRS. O. K.

THIS is as you wish. If you wish to have the monograms matching match use the same initials. Usually the silver acquired after marriage is engraved with the married initials.

The Woman Physician

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Some time ago I attended a bridge party. The lady who gave it had a sister visiting her who is a physician. When she made her acquainted with those present, she introduced her as Miss Jones. Was this proper? Most of the ladies present think she should have been introduced as Dr. Jones.

ANNA.

YES, indeed this was proper, Anna. It is the very best social form to use the social title—Mrs. or Miss, as the case may be—for a woman physician in her social contacts. That is, of course, unless the woman physician specially wishes to use her professional title in her social life. But as a rule, women physicians have separate cards for their professional use—Doctor Mary Jones—and for their social use—Miss Mary Jones or Mrs. Robert Roland Jones. Do remember, however, that the final choice and decision as to the form of the name rests with the woman herself.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, January 9

THE planetary combination of forces for this day is most auspicious, fostering ambition, achievement and high aspirations in many directions, practical as well as idealistic. There is encouragement for all sorts of ventures, projects and new agreements, with the assurance of success and financial advantage and also of personal preferment or gratification. It is time for pushing for goals, albeit there may be some aspect of the unwelcome as to change.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of golden opportunity with returns for past achievements and encouragement for fresh initiative and undertakings. There is gain in store as well as position, honors and personal satisfaction. There may be some measure of unrest or dissatisfaction regarding change or journeys.

A child born on this day may have many excellent traits and aspirations assuring it success and station in life.

Stubborn Cough Quickly Ended by Famous Recipe

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that usually follow the "flu."

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

"LIFE OF BEETHOVEN" FEATURE OF PROGRAMS

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

OUT in the middle west an old favorite will make whoopee tonight to celebrate the opening of its new radio home. WBBM moves into the Wrigley Building with plenty of gusto and the staff intends to let the whole world know about it beginning at 9 o'clock, eastern time.

A special two-hour program furnished by Chicago artists will follow the regular Columbia network broadcast which ends at midnight, our time.

The Freed-Eisemann Orchestradians come before the public for the first time over KDKA at 10:30 o'clock, offering popular music and Mildred Hunt, "Sweetheart of the air."

The "Life of Beethoven" will be portrayed at 9 p. m. in the Eveready Hour over WCAE. Frederick Forrester and Rosaline Greene take the leading parts. A mixed chorus of 16 voices will sing "The Worship of God in Nature."

Wigley's Royal Canadians at 11 p. m. is a feature over WJAS tonight. The "Voice of Columbia" concert at 10 p. m. has some excellent compositions.

At 8:30 over KQV the faculty of the Fillion Studios will give a program composed of piano, violin and vocal solos.

The career of John L. Sullivan, "The Boston Strong Boy," will be dramatized in the Seconyland Sketch over WGY at 7:30 o'clock.

"Anitra's Dance" and "Asa's Death" from Grieg's "Peer Gynt" are highlights of the Slumber Hour from WJZ at 11 p. m. Other selections are "At Dawning," the overture to "The Bronze Horse," and a number from "Faust."

LIFE OF BEETHOVEN.
The life and immortal works of Ludwig van Beethoven constitute the theme.
A continuity program, consisting of four related episodes depicting phases of Beethoven's career, together with selections of his compositions, will be broadcast.
Frederick Forrester will enact the role of the great German who claimed Vienna as his home with a supporting cast of Eveready Hour talent, including Rosaline Greene, Richard Abbott, Edwin Thompson, Jack MacBryde and Marcella Shields. Reginald Barlow will be the narrator.
The four episodes are based, first on Beethoven's arrival in Vienna to study under Haydn; second, a concert at the home of his patron, Count Lichnowsky; third, the composer's composition of the famous second movement of his Fifth Symphony, and, last, the tragic climax of his life in the approach of deafness, shutting him out from hearing his beloved music.
With Nathaniel Shilkret conducting, the Eveready Orchestra will provide the musical part of the program. Kathleen Stewart will play the piano solos, and a mixed chorus of 16 voices, under the direction of Arthur Leonard, will sing "The Worship of God in Nature" ("Ehre Gottes in Der Natur").
Musical selections will include portions of the Fifth Symphony and the Ninth Symphony, the Piano Sonata, opus 10, No. 2, and the Fourth Piano Concerto, third movement.

9:00 P. M.—Hank Simmons' Show Boat.

"FORGIVEN."
"Forgiven," a play in three acts, one of the most exciting melodramas of older times, was a starring vehicle for Frey Bryton, the famous actor. The action takes place in part in Florida and partly in in New Mexico.
Jack Diamond, known all over as "Jack o' Diamonds," is a fine man of good family who has lost his money and resorted to gambling as a profession. He falls in love with Annie, a lovely Southern girl, whom he marries and who bears him a child. The tragedy occurs when Willard Graham, the villain, comes between them, with the result that Annie takes her child and runs away to the West.
Years later, however, she and Jack are reunited, and Graham is killed by a man whom he has wronged.

BOARDS NAMED BY NATIONAL BANKS

National banks throughout the county today elected their boards of directors for the ensuing year. This is in accordance with the general regulations governing national banks to elect directors on the second Tuesday in January. In most instances the old boards were returned intact, only a few members being changed by death or resignation. Reports to national banking institutions and trust companies are due January 15.

Two vacancies occurred in the directorate of the Western Pennsylvania National Bank, caused by the death of Joseph Horne and the resignation of David W. Henning, and were filled by the election of Joseph Horne, Jr., and Arthur E. Braun, the latter of Wilkinsburg. Directors elected were: H. M. Dormitzer, Charles A. Arnold, Alfred M. Fichtel, John F. Holmes, Albert J. Schmidt, Peter Schoenberger, E. F. Schmidt, Theodore Schmidt, T. D. Mowry, Charles F. Schmidt.

MAYOR URGES THEATERS TO WARN AGAINST FLU

Owners of motion picture theaters today will receive a copy of a proclamation of Mayor Charles H. Kline, requesting the exhibition on the screen of a warning to patrons to use handkerchiefs when coughing as a protection against the spread of "cold" germs.

The request said that many physicians believed the present epidemic of influenza originated from "colds" communicated from person to person in places where crowds congregated and that with simple precautions many cases could be prevented.

The proclamation was requested in a resolution recently passed by Council on motion of W. Y. English.

PENNSYLVANIA ASKS EXTRA SESSION

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President-Elect Herbert Hoover was urged today by the Pennsylvania delegation in the Lower House to call an extra session of Congress shortly after his inauguration to consider tariff revision and farm relief legislation.

The plea for an extra session was embodied in a resolution passed unanimously by the delegation in it first meeting in two years.

The delegation also went on record in favor of passage of the pending reapportionment bill, reallocating congressional representation in accordance with population figures to be determined by the next decennial census of 1930. The bill is scheduled to come up Thursday.

In the absence of Representative W. Griest, of Lancaster, present chairman of the delegation, Representative George S. Graham, of Philadelphia, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, was selected to preside.

Representative H. W. Watson, of Langhorne, proposed the resolution urging President-elect Hoover to call an extra session, while the reapportionment resolution was sponsored by Representative Clyde Kelly, of McKeesport.

Afterwards, Representative Louis T. McFadden, of Canton, as secretary of the delegation, issued a formal statement containing a report on the meeting.

The report stated the delegation had taken up the contested election case of Representative James M. Beck, of Philadelphia, which comes up before the House today and agreed unanimously to support him.

Representative McFaden called attention of the delegation to the request of Adjutant F. D. Beary, pointing out the needs of the National Guard of Pennsylvania in the pending War Department appropriation bill. It was decided to support in full the recommendations for further funds for the National Guard.

CIVIC CLUB OF ALLEGHENY TO FIGHT SMOKE

The Civic Club of Allegheny County plans to take an energetic part in the campaign to free Pittsburgh from smoke.

A special committee of the club's smoke abatement committee has been called for Thursday morning. Prof. Willibald Trinks, head of the department of mechanical engineering at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, is chairman of the committee. Other members are Fred Barry, John O'Connor, Jr., John C. Reed and Dr. E. H. Weidlein.

Prof. Trinks would not say what would be done at the meeting, contenting himself with remarking that "certain plans would come to a head."

The finance committe of City Council has before it a resolution introduced by Councilman Robert Garland, authorizing the appointment of ten emergency smoke inspectors. It is planned to employ them for 90 days, using them only four hours a day, and to give the positions to University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Institute of Technology students.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

Don't Neglect a Cold Now, Is Doctor's Advice

Don't neglect any cold nowadays. Colds are so weakening, and in a weakened condition, you are so susceptible to more serious troubles.

When you find you are catching cold, take care to keep the bowels open. That's the first precaution every doctor advises. That's the way to avoid the congestion which makes you feverish, achy, half-sick, miserable.

Millions know the quick way to open the bowels, keep them active, is with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin. Every second of the day someone, somewhere is going into a drug store to get a bottle of this splendid medicine, made from simple laxative herbs and pepsin by the formula Doctor Caldwell found so effective during his 47 years' medical practice.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin is mild and gentle in its action, but it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution. Containing neither narcotics or opiates, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it gladly.

For colds, fevers, biliousness, indigestion, headaches, heartburn, nausea, bad breath, loss of sleep—any troubles caused by poor digestion or faulty evacuation, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin will prove a blessing.

Its overwhelming success and popularity is based on real merit—on one satisfied user telling another. Your drug store sells the generous bottles on a positive money-back guarantee to give satisfaction.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE SUN-TELE

MENTION THE SUN-TELEGRAPH WHEN ANSWERING ADVERTISEMENTS.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

Printed crepe was chosen in this instance, with trimming of plain crepe in a matched shade. The diagonal line is featured in this model, in the shaping of the bolero and the yoke of the skirt portions which flare becomingly at the sides where they form a smart dip. As pictured in the small view, the bolero and sleeves may be omitted. Sleeveless the model makes a pretty evening dress, youthful and attractive in crepe, satin or velvet.

The pattern is cut in four sizes, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. A 16-year size, if made as pictured in the large view, will require 4⅝ yards of 39-inch material. If made without sleeves and bolero 3¼ yards will be required. If made without the bolero and with sleeves 3¾ yards will be required. For facing of contrasting material on belt and cuffs ⅛ yard will be required. The width of the dress at the lower edge with flare extended is 2¼ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Few Jurors Excused Due to Influenza

Few jurors were excused from jury service in Common Pleas Court, because of the "flu," it developed in hearing excuses before Judge Harry H. Rowand. Those just recovering from the ailment or who had illness in their family were permitted to go, but contrary to expectations, no more than the usual number asked to be relieved out of a panel of 220 called for service.

5 TOWNS SEEK TO JOIN CITY

With Hays borough becoming a part of Pittsburgh today, petitions favoring annexation were put into circulation in five communities between Hays and Dravosburg. The communities are located in an area of approximately five square miles in Mifflin township. Representatives of the communities met last night in the Calhoun Park firemen's hall.

The districts seeking annexation have a population of about 4,000. The communities are Lincoln Place, Calhoun Park, Brierly, Neel, Little and McElhinny plans. They are located on the outskirts of Bettis Field and the new municipal airport site, extending from the Homestead Park car barns to Buttermilk Hollow.

J. M. Nelwon, president of the body favoring annexation, said that most of the residents wanted to enter the city because of the improvements which they believed would follow. The circulation of petitions was held up until today when Hays borough entered the city.

KONJOLA RECEIVES PRAISE FROM MANY LOCAL RESIDENTS

Master Medicine Accomplishing Wonders Among Suffering People of Pittsburgh. Konjola Man Busy at the McCulloch Drug Store.

A promise of abundant health and deliverance from the common health disorders was made by the Konjola Man when he first came to Pittsburgh from unusual successes at Chicago, Philadelphia and other large centers of population. He has established headquarters in the McCulloch Drug Store, Penn Ave. and Sixth Street, this city, where he is meeting personally all seekers of health and explaining the merits of Konjola and its merits. Volumes would be needed to carry all the voluntary indorsements of this medicine—an undeniable proof of its exceptional merits. Konjola is not a medicine of promises, claims or theories—it is one that brings results, accomplishments. At the very peak of its powers in cases that have defied all medicines and treatments, this super-remedy goes to the seat of the ailments, strengthening and invigorating the ailing organs to a mere normal, healthy action. What it has done for thousands of others it will do for you, as in the case of Mr. Bruce Douglas, 1006 State street, Erie, who recently sent the following remarkable statement to the Konjola Man now in this city:

"What Konjola did for me still surprises me, for I had no idea there was such a medicine in existence. For years I suffered with neuritis, severe attacks coming on after taking cold or engaging in violent exercise. I tried everything to prevent or relieve these attacks but without success. A few weeks ago, while on a train, I was telling of my neuritis to a chance acquaintance, and he said 'take Konjola and get rid of it over night.' I thought he was kidding me, but I told of the cases that Konjola had completely and quickly relieved. Others in the smoker overheard our conversation, and it seemed like all of them knew about Konjola and were eager to recommend it. When I stopped over in Cleveland, enroute to my home in Erie, I laid in a supply of this marvelous medicine, and determined to see if the fellows on the train knew what they were talking about. Well, they certainly did. Five bottles knocked out the neuritis, and my stomach and bowels are in wonderful condition. I am well through and through, feeling like a new man. I hope you publish this, so that my friends of the train ride will see it, and know what they did for me by tipping me onto Konjola. I had neuritis so bad that I could not sleep for the pain, but today no one in the world feels better than I do. I'll tell the world that Konjola is real medicine in it—and that's Konjola."

Those who have the ill fortune to suffer from the tortures of neuritis will find hope for relief in this voluntary statement. This is by no means an unusual case. Konjola is famed for results, quick and permanent.

MR. BRUCE DOUGLAS

TRIPLE ACTION

Ends coughs the Medical Way

No other cough syrup has it!

Home from shopping—sick—"grippy"—coughing

Feels fine again next day . . .
"Triple Action" worked fast!

"I CERTAINLY felt sick when I came home from shopping. I thought I had a good case of the grippe. Immediately I took some Smith Brothers Cough Syrup. In an hour my cough was beginning to disappear. The bound, tight feeling in my throat was loosened. My cough stopped. Although I thought that I was in for several weeks of sickness, in a day I felt as fine as a fish again.

"Smith Brothers' worked wonders with me—I know it saved me from a long sickness."

Both got well over night . . .
Triple Action did it!

"YOU know how it is with two children in the house. First George got sick and naturally Patty caught it. They were coughing all over the place.

I put them both to bed and gave them both Smith Brothers Cough Syrup. Within an hour they were so improved that they wanted to get out of bed again, but I made them stay in bed and gave them Smith Brothers (which by the way, they love to take because it tastes so good), and in the morning both Patty and George were quite well again!"

MRS. A. SINGER

Since 1839 Smith Brothers have been the nation's cough relief experts . . . Smith Brothers Triple Action Cough Syrup—developed after years of research—is medically and scientifically right.

One teaspoonful of Smith Brothers Triple Action Cough Syrup—and you feel better! Coughing calms down, throat "tickle" stops, the groggy "grippy" feeling is gone!

COSTS IMPOSED IN DRY CASES

Imposition of court costs in criminal cases yesterday was an innovation in the United States District Court. Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in pronouncing fines on four defendants in suits brought under the national prohibition law added that they also must pay court costs. This was an entirely new procedure and came as a surprise to government attorneys and other attaches of the court, as well as defense counsel.

The costs in each case ranged from $30 to $35, which included entry fees of cases in the office of the clerk of court, commissioner's fees and other costs. The defendants, Anthony Trenga, Tony Marino and Walter Roberts, all of Pittsburgh, who pleaded guilty to violating the prohibition law, were fined $200 each, and Joseph McTague was fined $100.

MANY MEN HAVE CONSTANT COUGH

Caused by Catarrhal, Asthma or Bronchial Trouble and Smoking.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDY SOON STOPS THE COUGH

Some men can smoke constantly and never cough, but let them catch a deep-seated cold and get a touch of Catarrhal, Bronchial or asthmatic trouble in their throat, Bronchial tubes or lungs and they are bound to have an awful cough. Their system has difficulty throwing it off, and in time they weaken and are apt to fall easy victim to respiratory lung diseases, pneumonia, fever or grippe.

NEED REAL REMEDY

Such coughs in themselves aren't dangerous or alarming, and any man may easily rid himself of such troubles and at the same time fortify, strengthen and build up his system so nature will be impervious to future attacks. It merely depends on how long it has clung to him how long it will take to throw it off.

A couple large bottles of Lin-O-Nine, a nice tasting, creamy white mixture of Flaxseed Oil, Cassia, Eucalyptus, Betula, Irish Moss and Glycerine does the trick. It is nice to take, soothes the membrane lining almost instantly; checks the cough and rapidly assists nature in the work of throwing off the catarrhal, bronchial or asthmatic symptoms.

Lin-O-Nine is more thorough and faster working than nasty, nauseating Cod Liver Oil, which is about the only other real remedy for such troubles.

Lin-O-Nine is made of finest ingredients and guaranteed by the long established, nationally known Kerr Chemical Corp. Doctors, specialists and thousands of users endorse it. Local druggists are featuring Lin-O-Nine. At this time of year grave dangers lurk in coughs and colds. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00.

Sure Way to Stop Coughing

This Prescription Relieves Almost Instantly.

Coughing is usually due to causes which patent medicines and cough syrups do not reach. However, Thoxine, a famous doctor's prescription, relieves coughing with the very first swallow. It works on an entirely different theory, has a double action, relieves the irritation and goes direct to the internal cause.

Unlike most cough medicines, Thoxine contains no chloroform, dope, or other harmful drugs. Safe for the whole family. Also excellent for sore throat. Quick relief guaranteed or your money back. 35c, 60c and $1.00. All druggists.

URGES INQUIRY INTO ILL MAN'S CELL DEATH

The public safety committee of Council today will consider a letter from Fred R. Kleibacker, 803 Publication Building, asking for an official inquiry into the death January 1 in Central Police Station of Charles S. Dunmire.

The letter states that the prisoner was delirious with fever and was left to die in a cell without efforts being made to determine what affected the man, "callous officers having said they believed him to be mentally unbalanced."

The writer said there were other similar cases reported and that "these happenings are disgraceful, unbearable and an abomination and the perpetrators should be so dealt with as to preclude the possibility of any like thing occurring hereafter."

Council Gets Bill For Christmas Tree

HIS SUNDAY MORNING JOB

"Every Sunday morning I make my rounds over the house, winding the clocks and feeding one or more Plantabbs to every plant. My wife sees that they are watered regularly, and as a result all of our house plants are doing fine." This statement was made by a well-known business man.

Plantabbs are now being used all over the city in the homes of both rich and poor. No amount of money can buy anything better for potted plants and flowers. PLANTABBS are so economical, clean and easy to use everyone wants them. These little tablets are just chock-full of plant FOOD, yet they are absolutely odorless and don't even dirty your hands when you use them.

25c, 50c and $1.00 packages are on sale by florists, seed dealers and druggists in this city. Out-of-town customers may order direct from the Plant Products Company, Baltimore, Md.

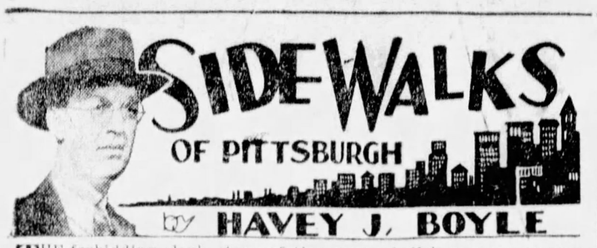
HOMESTEAD OUSTS VETERAN FIRE CHIEF

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



by HAVEY J. BOYLE

THE forbidding, dark stone of the county jail in no way conveys what comforts are in store for the incarcerated, after they walk through the heavy doors. A tour of the county jail, now under the administration of Warden John McNeil, would suggest a moderate-priced hotel. One enthusiast writes to the column that it is an ideal place for a rest cure. Be that as it may, most of us will think of other places it ever we reach that point where a rest is ordered.

"If the Biddle boys should haunt the jail," writes Spy No. 469, who recently made a tour of the jail, "they would not know the old place. In place of a rude bench they would find a cot. In place of a dark cell they would find a clean, bright room, painted. They would find a washstand in each cell, with hot and cold running water. They would find white walls made more luminous by floods of electric lights. They would find that they might lie on their cot and read to their hearts' content. If not inclined to read, they could listen to a powerful radio which broadcasts day and evening. Healthful and well-cooked meals are the order and good digestion waits on the appetite promoted by working at keeping porcelain and paint spotless and the brass shining bright."

THERE is a well-equipped hospital and a doctor to take care of the sick prisoners. And every morning the warden, like some modern Caliph of Bagdad, holds "court" to hear complaints and requests. One of the biggest problems is to provide clothing for prisoners about to be discharged.

There is a barber shop, a bakershop, where wheat and ginger breads are baked daily, and nearly every comfort of home, except liberty, is provided in the small city enclosed in the architectural mass called "Richardson's masterpiece."

LITTLE wonder the county jail has reached such high estate. The present warden had 37 years' experience as a subaltern to the late Warden Edward Lewis before assuming control. During 37 years in one place, one naturally can pick up a few ideas that are worth while.

Quite a few of the improvements in the jail have come from the idea to let the prisoners pass the time by working. Idleness of the inmates is generally believed by men in charge of jails and prisons as the incubator which hatches trouble.

Every Sunday in the jail there are religious services and on holidays there are vaudeville shows provided by a veteran manager of such service, Steve Forrest.

IT WOULD likely please the ghost of Charles Dickens, the reporter, whose trenchant pen brought about great prison reforms in England, and set the style in other places, to see the inside of the Allegheny County jail under the supervision of Warden John McNeil.

Still, with all of its advantages, those of us who can go out for a stroll and see the sights will leave the jail and its conveniences severely alone.

In pointing out the advantages of the jail, one ought to be careful to say that possibly the same conveniences can be found in other places. The column does not want to start a small crime wave.

DID you ever read O. Henry's story about the fellow who tried to be put in jail?

CORAOPOLIS OFFICIALS IN ROW

Coraopolis has less crime and vice than any other community in the county, Police Chief Samuel Riddle and Burgess Fritz C. Gangloff declared last night at a meeting of Council at which time the two officials were criticized by other officials for non-enforcement of the laws. No action was taken, but the matter was referred to the public safety committee.

D. L. McKee, president of council and Councilman E. R. Holsinger were the men who complained that Riddle neglected to enforce the Prohibition laws. The accusations indirectly reflected upon the burgess and he immediately came to Riddle's defense.

Holsinger declared there were more than 40 speakeasies running openly in the town and that there were many slot machines being operated. Both Gangloff and Riddle said they were willing to make raids when evidence was offered. Riddle said he had but little co-operation from his force.

BOROUGH'S PAYROLL SLICED

Homestead borough Council last night ousted Joseph Bryce as chief of the borough fire department. Bryce, a veteran of 40 years' service, was replaced by Herman Samuels, a captain who has been a member of the department two years. Bryce is a son of the late C. K. Bryce, founder of the fire department in the community.

Council also voted to lay off three policemen, force firemen to take a day off, and cut down the street cleaning department, to keep within expenses. At the present rate the borough would be in debt more than $30,000 by July 1, it was said.

Council took no action in the case of Patrolman Festus Cannon, suspended on a charge of neglect of duty by Burgess John J. Cavanaugh. It was testified that Cannon, a traffic cop, had left his corner without permission. The matter was referred to the public safety committee.

HOMES PLANNED IN EAST END

Several good dwellings are being planned for the Squirrel Hill district according to applications filed with the City Bureau of Building Inspection. Among these are two brick veneer homes in Anita street by James H. Jeffries, estimated to cost $14,000 and a brick and tile home in Beechwood boulevard by Peter Bucci, at a cost of $11,000. Other applications on file are: G. R. Rhodes, 5267 Wilkins avenue, inclosing porch, and James P. Hunt, brick and tile dwelling, 1831 Shaw avenue.

Churchview Avenue Traffic Light Asked

Edward Hope, 2548 Brownsville road, has forwarded to Council a letter requesting the installation of an electric "stop and go" traffic signal light at Brownsville road and Churchview avenue. He said the device would save the lives of motorists, make the crossing safer for pedestrians and prevent damage to automobiles.

Street Width Fixed

An ordinance fixing the width and position of sidewalks and roadway on Robina street from Sherwood avenue to a point 104 feet southwardly has been received by Council.

Too Hard to Spell, Wants His Name Changed

Andreas Klobinicky, who has been a resident of Homestead for the last five years, presented Judge Harry H. Rowand, of Common Pleas Court, with a petition requesting that he be permitted to change his name to Andrew Calvin Kloby. He gives as a reason for desiring the change that the name is hard to spell and pronounce.

REBEKAH HOME WORK RUSHED

Work is progressing rapidly on the new two-story fireproof Rebekah Home of Western Pennsylvania in McClure avenue, North Side, adjoining the Odd Fellows' Orphan Home.

The foundation is completed and the superstructure has been begun. It is expected that by next August the building will be ready for occupancy and the present home at 539 California avenue, Avalon, sold.

Album St. Laid Off

Thomas Street Surveyed

An ordinance fixing the width and position of sidewalks and roadway of Thomas street from North Braddock avenue to the city line has been introduced in Council.

LEGION'S CUP WON BY MOUNT

Kenneth Newman Post No. 200, Mt. Washington American Legion, won the inter-district Allegheny county cup for the best membership record during 1928, it was announced by John B. Nicklas, Jr., vice commander of the Allegheny county committee and chairman of membership.

The Mt. Washington post, in the thirty-fifth district, added 29 members to the 54 it had at the beginning of the campaign. The district gained 994 members. East Liberty post was a close second and Homewood post came third. The cup will remain in possession of the Mt. Washington post until February when the organization will again have to enter competition for it. February will be "National Membership Month" of the legion.

ZONE APPEALS REJECTED

The Zoning Board of Adjustment, this morning, made public its decisions in 21 cases referred to it, upon appeals from the decisions of the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection. Six appeals were denied; three appeals were granted outright and 12 appeals were granted with conditions so as to more nearly comply with the provisions of the zoning ordinance. The petitions denied are:

Mrs. Cora M. Thompson, 5824 Bartlett street, Fourteenth Ward. Change one-family dwelling into two-family dwelling.

R. Balsinger, 666 Marshall avenue, Twenty-sixth Ward. One-family dwelling.

Frank Mallinger, 1309 Forbes street, First Ward. Change two-story building into store and two-family dwelling.

Dr. W. H. Dunn, rear 5149 Penn avenue, Tenth Ward. Two-story office and one-family dwelling.

CRASH VICTIM ASKS $20,000

George Altman, whose horses were struck while he was driving them to Carnegie October 13 last, one of the animals being so badly hurt it had to be killed and the second rendered useless, has brought suit against Sauer Brothers for $20,000 damages for the loss of the team and injuries to himself.

In the action filed in Common Pleas Court John Sauers, George Sauers, Jr., and William Sauers, trading as Sauer Brothers, are named individually. The accident occurred on the Campbells Run road in Robinson township near the intersection of Keiners lane.

Car Backs Into Youth Victim Badly Injured

Struck by an automobile at Penn and Center avenues, Morris Stutzsky, 19, of 5435 Stanton avenue, suffered injuries to both legs and was taken to the West Penn Hospital last night. C. E. Betikofer, of 6024 Penn avenue, who struck him, told police, they say, that he was backing his machine when the accident occurred.

Steward Falls Dead On His Way to Work

John Schultz, 69, of 1420 Rutherford street, Beechview, steward at Lodge No. 46, Loyal Order of Moose, fell dead late yesterday afternoon in front of 1502 Broadway, Beechview, while on his way to work. He was married.

3 Autos Damaged By Fire in Garage

Two automobiles and a truck were badly damaged when fire of undetermined origin broke out in a two-story brick garage at 722 Ark way, North Side, late last night. Firemen extinguished the blaze and estimated the damage at $1,500. The property is leased by the Ludwig Floral Company, of the North Side, police say.

NEW PADDLE WHEEL SAID TO SPEED UP TOW BOATS

Years of captaining river boats in Louisiana, Arkansas and on the east coast of Florida, caused Capt. Fred Doty, of Baltimore, to realize that the present horizontal paddle wheel on river boats does not work as efficiently as it should. Today, after five years of study and experimentation, he has perfected a high speed paddle wheel for towboats, which, he believes, will revolutionize inland waterways transportation. A 50-inch model of a towboat, equipped with the Doty high speed paddle, is now on exhibition at the engineering plant of James Rees & Sons, 18 Fancourt street.

The boat has two wheels, one on either side of the extended stern, which operate on the principle of two feathering oars on a row boat. The wheel has practically the same shaft, hub and buckets as the present type stern wheel. The spokes at the inner side of the wheel are shorter, so that when the buckets are fastened on, they will be in a horizontal position at their lowest point of submergence. When built the wheel assumes a conical shape. By staggering the keyways on the shaft, the spokes will line up on a curve and when the buckets are drawn up to them and fastened, assume a shape similar to a screw propeller.

Capt. Doty points out that the position of the buckets enables them to enter the water edgewise, thus avoiding the broad side slap, which is the cause of considerable vibration. As the bucket enters sidewise, it does not separate the water for the bucket following. On leaving the water, the buckets are on an inclined position, which allows the water to be thrown off instead of being lifted up over the wheel. As a result, he pointed out, a higher peripherical velocity is obtained.

T. R. Tarn, Pittsburgh naval architect, who developed the plans for Doty's boat, considers it well suited for shallow draft river craft.

Extra Bridge Work Dispute in Council

Council today will consider in Finance Committee a resolution authorizing payment of an undetermined amount to J. T. Nelon for extra work on foundations for California avenue bridge over Woods Run.

The amount due Nelon has been in dispute for months with the contractor claiming about $120,000 and city engineers seeking a compromise.

Lacy Way Grade Asked

An ordinance establishing the grade of Lacy way from Juniata place to Reynolds street has been presented to Council.

"NANCY DEANE" by ROY L. FOLEY

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Deane, golden haired, dark-eyed, has been brought up by the O'Days in the town of Washington, Pa.; she is really the daughter of Montague Deane and Julie Abbott, the former the disinherited son of one of the richest families in Pittsburgh, but she is unaware of this relationship. She loves the O'Days and works in the station lunch room to help them pay their rent. There she meets John Blair, an upstanding young man who helps her out of a difficulty and invites her to go to the circus. Although she is wary of men generally she recognizes that Blair is a gentleman and accepts. Nancy loses her job and goes home to find everything there upset. Mrs. O'Day tells her she's heard from her mother who's in town with the circus and wants to see the baby she deserted 18 years before. Nancy hears the true story of her parentage. She goes to the circus realizing her mother is a performer in the big show. Her mother is seriously hurt when she falls from tight-rope. After her mother is buried Nancy decides to get a job in Pittsburgh. Through the assistance of John Blair she procures one.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

JOHN BLAIR'S strong, brown hand covered hers, Nancy could feel the strength of it, and this strength made her more tremblys. All at once she felt little and insignificant and futile.

"Don't be afraid," John said. "Everything's going to be all right. You'll—"

"I'm going to kiss you," he said.

He said it so quickly, cutting off so sharply whatever it was that he had started to say, that Nancy was surprised she was able to keep her gaze straight ahead, into the darkness of the trees.

He buried his face in the cold of her hair, and then, while she still sat unmoving, he lifted her chin and pressed his lips against hers.

It was the first time that a man had kissed her like that. The first time that she had ever been made love to, and she sat petrified.

"You're the sweetest girl I've ever seen," he said. "Tell me, will—"

Nancy jumped to her feet.

"John, please—" she pleaded.

She started to walk away. In an instant he was beside her. She felt his arms about her. Her head was against his breast. She couldn't hold back the tears.

"I'm afraid," she repeated.

By the time they had reached the O'Day cottage, after a long walk in the light of a summer's moon, Nancy O'Day had told John Blair that she couldn't think of marrying anybody now. Not for a long time, she said. She was too eager to face the world, "to win something" from it.

"I'm loving you, Nancy," John said. "How can one little girl be so sweet as you are? You're the only girl I ever knew who I wasn't a little afraid of—and I knew I wasn't going to be shy of you the first minute I laid eyes on you."

He told her, too, that he was willing that she should face the world, if she would, that she should "win something," but he asked her to remember he was loving her and that she must think hard if she couldn't say as much for him.

He said that he would call on her just as soon as he could get to town, that he would take her out to his home. He wanted her to see his mother's gardens, where the Blairs had lived many years.

She ran into the house, fear and happiness trying to crowd into her heart at the same time.

CHAPTER V.

IT was the longest railroad journey Nancy had ever started out on alone. In all her 18 years she had never been farther away than Charleroi.

She climbed into the long yellow coach, her heart pounding. The train lurched, half throwing her into a seat. Her patent leather purse, with the red trimmings, flew from her hand, straight into the lap of the girl occupying the seat.

"Sorry," Nancy apologized.

"That's all right, dearie," the girl said. Come right in an' make yourself comfy. Glad to have someone to talk to. Goin' to Pittsburgh, I suppose. Well, that's where I'm going, too. Live there. Jes been up to the lake on a vacation. But say, this back to nature stuff don't appeal to me none. Not one little bit."

"Say, I'm just a sight with mosquito bites. An' I'm burned raw. My complexion's a sight. Lookit!"

The girl held out her hands for Nancy to "lookit." Nancy wondered if she regarded her hands as her complexion. They did bear the traces of a little sunburn, just slightly pink on the backs of her hands and on her arms, but the fingers were white as milk. Her nails were extremely long and manicured to elaborate points. They were stained a deep pink, too, and shone like rubies.

"Say, let the preachers preach that back to nature stuff till they're blue in the face. Gingers never going to get tempted into this summer resort livin' again. Say, they told me it was swell stuff at those resorts and that it was full of busted down millionaires and the spoiled sons of the rich from Pittsburgh. Say, I didn't dump into one spoiled son nor one tottering old duck with more than the price of a banana split. Nothin' up to that lake but a lot of catty women whose hubbys was gettin' a rest from 'em down in the little old city. Squallin' kids and women, that's what I got out of my vacation.

"Say, there wasn't one bimbo with any snap come into my life in all the ten days I was stagnatin' up to that lake. So that's why I'm beatin git out of there, even though I ain't due back to the store 'till Saturday.

"It'll be three days fling for Ginger, and then for the work good and plenty. Fall style show's opening at the Auditorium next week. Us girls will be roasting in those winter coats.

"But that, dearie, is the life of Nellie the beautiful cloak model. But say, it's fun modelin'. An' I'm sure glad the summer's over. Me for winter when the nights come earlier. There's always more doin' in winter anyways. An' I'd just rather be dead than not goin'g all the time. That's how I am, rather be dead than not on the go every minute.

"That's how I am, down at the house they call me jazzmania because I'm so restless. My name's Virginia—Ginger for snap. Virginia Varden. Was Harden once, but Varden went better with Virginia. What you think?"

Nancy's brain was whirling. The continuous chatter of the girl who called herself Ginger for snap, was so amazing that Nancy did not know what she did think. She opened her mouth to say something, but Ginger spoke first.

"Well, if we ain't down to Carnegie."

Just then her eyes lighted on some one she knew.

"Well, for cryin' out loud. If there isn't Jerry Durant." Hardly had she spoken when Mr. Durant caught her eye, and starting pushing his way toward the two girls.

"Whatever is he doing on this train in this neck of the woods," Ginger was saying, "his car must have busted, or somethin'. I can't imagine Jerry traveling in one of these dinky trains when he's got the car he has."

Ginger had guessed it. Jerry's car had a broken wheel. Some "fool drunk" had run into him just outside of Carnegie, he said, and he had to leave the car there.

"Couldn't wait," he told the girls, after Nancy had been introduced.

"Zowie! can that woman ever give them a party? Nice girl, Collette."

No, Ginger said she hadn't known of the party, but would go anyway. From their conversation Nancy learned that Collette was a very "broad minded" person who did free lance illustrating and occasional modeling, and that she had a studio on Penn avenue.

"Bring your girl friend here with you," Jerry said, looking down at Nancy. "Sure, come on along, girlie. It's free for all. The more the merrier."

"Sure thing," said Ginger. "Like to go, kiddo?"

Half frightened, half thrilled, Nancy looked at Ginger, then back to the smiling, flushed face of Jerry Durant. She certainly was getting a warm welcome to Pittsburgh.

"I'd love to go, but you see this is my first trip to Pittsburgh and I don't even know where I am going to stay. A friend of mine, a Mr. Blair, said he thought I ought to go over to a place called the Blue Triangle, where the "Y" girls live. Just to get my bearings, you know. Then he said I could hunt up some other place to live if I didn't care to stay at the Blue Triangle.

"This Mr. Blair is getting me a job in the Wear-Ever knitting factory, and I'm going to night school so I can work in an office. I've never been to Pittsburgh before and maybe I'd better go right to the Blue Triangle before I start going to any parties."

She was talking too much, Nancy knew it, but her tongue just would go on. It seemed a relief for her nervousness to tell someone.

"The Blue Triangle!"

Jerry and Ginger both burst out laughing. Nancy thought they would never stop.

"What's so convulsing about that, is it such a funny place?" she asked.

She could feel the blood creeping up around her ears and spreading into her cheeks.

"Girlie, I'd blush, too," roared Jerry, pounding the back of her car seat, and so loud that he attracted the attention of passengers half the length of the car.

"Say little yellow head," he said, "you're too classy to be wasting your days and nights in a nunnery like the Blue Triangle. Those golden curls of yours would straighten out with despair over there. Where you want to come is right over to The Carmondy where Ginger lives, eh, Ginger?"

Dr. ROSWELL JOHNSON, of the University of Pittsburgh, gave an instructive lecture to the Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg yesterday afternoon in the Y. W. C. A. Community House. His subject was "The Population Problem." Mrs. Albert L. Vercell presided at the business session which preceded the lecture. The hostess for the afternoon was Mrs. Dean Harvey and the ushers were the members of the philanthropic committee.

The drama department of the club will hold its monthly meeting next Tuesday in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel. Grecian theaters and plays, as described by Nellie Burget Miller in her book, "The Living Drama," will be reviewed by Mrs. Dean Harvey, and, in connection with this, Mrs. W. C. Walters, dramatic reader and a member of the department, will read from Sophocles' "Antigone."

Last year 7,000,000 Chinese were taught to read and write under condition that each one go out and teach one more. In this way, China figures that her population will in 17 years be on reading and writing terms with the 1,500 new and simple words which have been introduced into the language. So the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club was informed yesterday by Dr. Tien Lai Huang, one of the most noted representatives of new China, who is in America to promote fellowship between the two countries and to study airplane manufacturing. Since his arrival in the United States Dr. Huang has flown 9,000 miles and has visited 28 airplane plants.

20th Century Club Sees Ruin Pictures

Pictures of the progress and results in unearthing Leptis Magna, the ancient sand-covered Roman city in Northern Africa, were shown to the Twentieth Century Club yesterday by Dr. Bruno Rosell, of Vassar College. These pictures, together with Dr. Rosell's witty talk, made one of the most interesting program features the club has had this season. Leptis is pure Roman and was built by the Emperor Septimus Severus (whose birthplace it was) as the show place for Rome. The city fell into decline because it had produced no great writer to sing its praises, Dr. Rosell stated. The excavations show beyond doubt that the so-called Byzantine arches, columns and decoration are really Roman, and not Oriental in origin. Dr. Rosell spoke of the tremendous difficulties encountered in the excavations, especially the difficulty in disposing of the sand and preventing its relining. The work is largely a labor of love, the speaker stated, for the Italian government has only the equivalent of $6000 a year to spend on it.

Dr. Rosell was introduced by Mrs. Carrol Miller, a member of the lecture committee of the club, and a Vassar graduate.

"A STUDY OF MARRIAGE—ENTIRELY WITHOUT PREJUDICE, BY A SPINSTER," is the way this week's meeting of the College Club is announced in the club bulletin. The name of the speaker, who is a well known Pittsburgh woman and a prominent club worker, is being withheld until the meeting day. The tea hostesses for this week include Mrs. Harry R. Decker, Mrs. J. Hartley Anderson, Mrs. George R. Gibbons, Mrs. James K. Kerchner, Miss Edna Lowenhaupt, Mrs. Edwin P. Buchanan. The College Club reading groups are developing into one of the most important features of club life. They draw into their circles members who do not attend the Friday afternoon meetings and, in addition, are open to friends of members who are ineligible to membership. The general readers' group is meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock to discuss Shaw's "The Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism and Capitalism," and at 8 o'clock tonight the novel readers will study H. G. Wells' "Mr. Polly," as reviewed by Miss Bertha Steiner. The drama readers at 1:30 today had a play reading and the parental education section met at 2 this afternoon. In addition to these groups the poetry group meets alternate Fridays at 1:45.

Philadelphia
PEPPER POT SOUP
Campbell's make it for you!

From earliest Colonial times visitors to Philadelphia have returned home with glowing tales of the generous entertainment and distinctive dishes served by the gracious hostesses of those days. And particularly did they have occasion to remark on "Pepper Pot," a piquant, zestful soup of such definite character and appeal that its charms stood out in their memories above all the delicacies associated with this city famous for good things.

And what a sumptuous soup is this Philadelphia Pepper Pot—such a unique and unusual soup, with an historical background as definitely fixed in the traditions of Philadelphia as are Benjamin Franklin, Carpenter's Hall, Independence Hall or the Betsy Ross House themselves.

A rich stock, velvety-smooth and subtly blended by Campbell's special Pepper Pot cook, with hearty pieces of delicious meat, a racy dash of savory thyme, sweet marjoram, freshly-ground black peppercorns, generously enriched with diced potatoes and carrots, sweet pimientos and tempting macaroni dumplings.

Everybody ought to know Campbell's Pepper Pot. Such distinction! What definite personality. No wonder that its fame and reputation for hearty goodness and pungent savor have spread far beyond the city of its origin. An original soup, wholly American, which even the French cannot surpass for piquancy and zest. Your grocer can supply you with Campbell's Pepper Pot or will gladly get it for you. 12 cents a can.

KEEP YOUR APPETITE YOUNG

If the things you used to like disagree with you, take a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin after a meal. It displaces the excess acid in the stomach, sweetens your food, and digests it. The nourishment from it produces good, healthy tissue and blood—you gain weight and strength, and with that comes a healthy, youthful color.

Thousands of people who suffered from stomach trouble for years praise Pape's Diapepsin for their good health and young appetite. They can now eat anything they want. That's why 5 million packages are used a year.

Any druggist will supply you with Pape's Diapepsin, because it is indispensable in every home.

Lang Asks Council To Pay Old Aide, Ill

Council will consider a request from Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works today for permission to grant a three months' leave of absence with pay to Ralph R. Sims, transitman, bureau of engineering, who is seriously ill. Sims has been in the city employ since 1887.

Do You Want to Advance at Once?

G. E. MARCHAND, America's Foremost Maker of Successful Men and Women and Member of the Bar of the U. S. Supreme Court.

Gives Actual Demonstration on Stage

Come . . . See for Yourself

These are but a few of the many keys to achievement that will be demonstrated before your eyes by G. E. Marchand, America's famous maker of successful men and women.

Living Models

Mr. Marchand, "The Pay Booster," has put thousands of near successes on the road to GREAT success. He wastes no time on idle theories of getting ahead. He gives actual demonstrations—with living models—of how any ambitious man or woman can advance at once.

Double Your Income

As a direct result of applying Mr. Marchand's new methods, thousands have been enabled, in one swift stroke, to break away from dull routine jobs and attain entirely unexpected heights of success. Following are reprinted just a few excerpts from countless letters received by him from those who attended his programs.

Astonishing Results of Coaching

"More than doubled my earnings," says Frank H. Copeland. "Increased my income from $4,000 to $14,000 in one year," telegraphs I. R. Harris. "On January 1st I was promoted to branch manager," says C. H. Rivers, of Washington, D. C., whose experience typifies that of thousands. "Last month I increased my pay check $97.32 over any previous month," writes J. E. Seitz, and letters like his are constantly pouring in.

All Seats Free

Mr. Marchand's methods are new. They are different. Ambitious people who attend his free public programs are thrilled—aroused, given new worlds of confidence in themselves. For he proves to them—right before their eyes—how easy it is to turn their ability into cash and advance at once.

In other great cities vast crowds have quickly profited by Mr. Marchand's demonstrations. So to be sure you don't miss this great opportunity, arrive early.

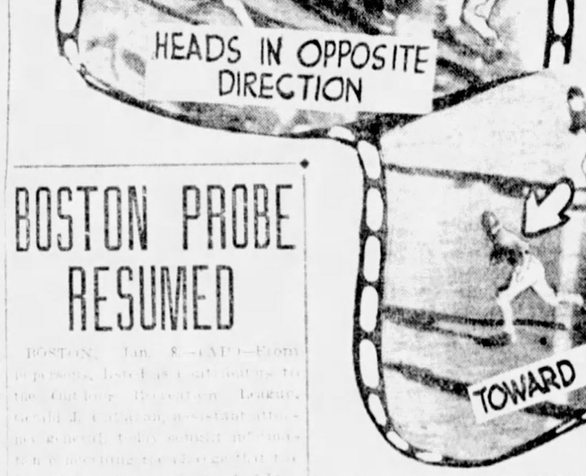
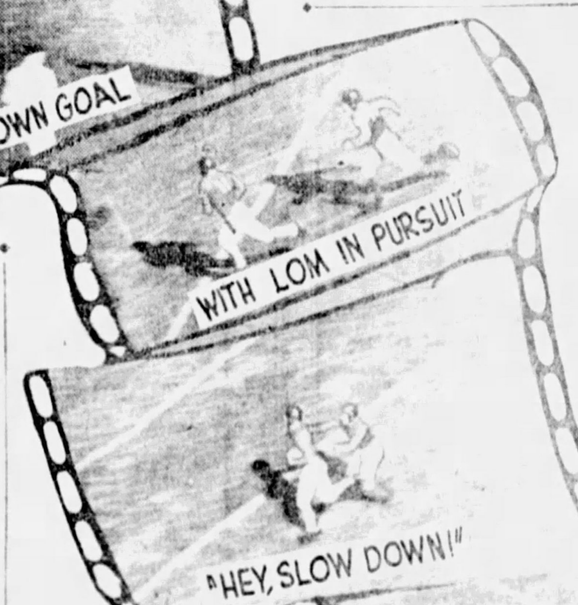
PIRATES BATTLE HAWKS TONIGHT

MOVIES TELL STORY OF WRONG-WAY RUN





PHOTOS BY M-G-M.

RIEGELS IN ACTION

An M-G-M News cameraman was right on the job when Roy Riegels, of California, made his 70-yard wrong-way run against Georgia Tech in the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, losing the battle for his team, 8 to 7. Pictures from the movies show every bit of action from the time the ball was fumbled and Riegels picked it up and started toward Georgia Tech's goal, until he reversed to avoid a tackle and ran to his own goal line before he was stopped by his teammate, Lom. A safety followed for the points that decided the game.

Lure of Game Calls Cobb To Camp

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 8.—(INS)—The lure of hickory and horsehide still has its hold upon Ty Cobb.

Although he has announced his final ride upon "it will be among those present when the St. Louis Browns gather here for training, according to Dan Howley, Browns' manager.

However, the Georgia Peach will not play with the Browns. He's just going to spend a little pleasure with his golf to West Palm Beach, and limber up his legs along with the rookies.

RICKARD, ROCAP COURT BATTLE RECALLED

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

BACK in 1920, the late Tex Rickard was sued for slander and defamation of character by the late Billy Rocap, a veteran sports writer of Philadelphia, and lost the verdict. Rocap sued for $25,000 damages and was awarded $500 by the jury, which amounted to what he sought—vindication.

This writer was one of the chief witnesses in the case and had the opportunity of coming into close contact with the real Rickard—the right-hand man of the world.

The suit was tried in Philadelphia, after Rickard had arranged for several postponements. The promoter managed to evade service for some time and finally was nabbed as he stepped off a train in North Philadelphia to attend a boxing show at one of the Philadelphia baseball parks. Then, the usual delays over, the day of reckoning finally dawned.

Rocap's suit was an aftermath of the Dempsey-Willard fight at Toledo, in July, 1919, in which Dempsey won the championship when Willard failed to respond to the bell for the fourth round after having been floored seven times and saved by the bell in the first round.

THE day after the bout, Rocap in a signed story that was syndicated far and wide took Rickard severely to task, branding the bout a frame-up. He pointed out that Rickard knew Willard was not in shape and was not trying to gain fighting condition and declared the promoter should be barred from staging any similar exhibitions. The story attracted widespread attention in view of the fact that it took direct issue with those of other writers, who declared the bout on the level. Rocap expected reprisals by newspaper men in the lobby of the Scott Hotel the following day and vowed to get even with Rocap who he declared was "blackmailing" him and included something about $1,000.

When Rocap's paper heard about this, it demanded a showdown and Rocap filed suit to clear himself. When the case was heard it developed that Rocap, along with some friends, had arranged to run a special train from Philadelphia to the fight and had purchased a block of ringside seats. At the eleventh hour, due to post-war conditions, the railroad canceled the special train, and Rocap sought to have Rickard redeem the tickets. Stuck, with thousands of tickets still unsold for the fight, due to the fact that the impression had spread that the hotels were overcrowded and ample facilities to handle the throng in Toledo were unavailable, Rickard refused to take back any tickets that already had been disposed of and a scene with Rocap followed. It was to this incident that Rickard alluded when he uttered the ill-advised word "blackmail."

THE highlight of the trial occurred when Rickard was placed on the stand for questioning and answered in monosyllables. An attorney for Rocap pictured Rickard's career.

"Is it not true, Mr. Rickard," he asked, "that you have traveled far and wide in the world and have become known as a man of wealth, and that you have been a champion, a promoter of big boxing matches, a rancher and have been in many phases in life?"

Rickard admitted that all of this was true enough.

"Did you ever seem when you were being blackmailed, by Mr. Rocap?"

"I never used the word. I don't know what it means. I never heard it before," he declared vehemently.

The attorney looked his incredible amazement. The jury returned its award for Rocap, giving him the vindication he sought and one-fifteenth of the amount sued for, probably figuring that the affair was a general misunderstanding all the way 'round and Rocap deserved to be set right for the words spoken in the heat of white anger by the promoter.

Rocap and Rickard never became friendly again. Rocap, who later became the first chairman of the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission, died a few months ago. Perhaps they'll heal the breach Over There.

PORTALS CLOSED TO CROWDS

By DAVID P. SENTNER, International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Like a bronze jewel box in the center of an empty amphitheater, the $15,000 casket containing the remains of Tex Rickard, today reposed simply in the new Madison Square Garden, his dream arena.

Today it was housemoss only a cluster of high hatted officials, a dozen policemen, an honor guard and the thousands of empty seats starting down from concrete tiers on this latest spectacle.

But tomorrow Tex will have a showman's funeral worthy of his name. The doors of the mighty sport monument he built will be flung ajar and the public permitted to see the master promoter at home for the last time.

Rickard, who liked crowds, would have been disappointed today. Perhaps it was the piercing cold which whistled about the stately heights, perhaps it was the ultra-efficiency of the New York police in dispersing groups—but the route of the funeral procession from the Pennsylvania Station to the Garden drew only meager throngs.

Col. Hammond.

Star tenpin bowler of East Pittsburgh, who yesterday rolled his third perfect score of 300 with the big pins on the Votel Brothers' alleys, in East Pittsburgh, conducted by himself and his brother, Harry, also a famous pin-topoler. The score was made in a match with J. Mooney, of East Pittsburgh, and formerly of Fairbanks, Cal., whom Eddie defeated, 710 pins to 627, in three games. Votel scored 195, 300 and 215, while Mooney rolled 212, 189 and 226. Votel's two previous perfect scores were made in 1926 and 1927 on the same alleys. In 1926, he also won the singles championship of the A. B. C. tournament with a total of 731 pins. Harry Votel is the National Elks' tournament champion.

BUCS FACE CRISIS IN RACE

GAMES TONIGHT

Chicago vs. Pirates at Duquesne Garden (8:30).
Ottawa at Montreal.
Toronto at Boston.

By CARL W. SHATTO.

MANAGER ODIE CLEGHORN and his tenderhearted ice Pirates face a tough situation today. There are several reasons why the Bucs can wear frowns, trimmed with scowls, very becomingly, and here are all of them:

1—They play the Chicago Blackhawks at Duquesne Garden tonight, and local fandom, noting the Hawks' position at the bottom of the National League standing, demand rather than request a Pirate victory. This would not bother the Pirates particularly were the Hawks the doormats that they generally are supposed to be, but the invaders recently carved out triumphs over the New York Americans and Boston Bruins in successive engagements. Any team that can beat the Americans and the Bruins in succession is nobody's doormat. The Bucs frown when they think about that.

2—The boys on Benny Leonard's payroll have just returned from New York and Boston. The clash with the Rangers, a 2-2 tie affair, was fairly satisfactory, but the Saturday night rout in Boston, when the Bucs amassed 10 penalties and two majors in accepting a 3-2 setback at the hands of the Bruins, caused the locals mental anguish every time they think of it and physical anguish every time they think of it and physical anguish every time they move.

BUCS WELL BRUISED

3—The Pirates have to carry the brunt of the battle four times within a period of six days. In addition to the game with the Hawks here tonight, they meet the Cougars in Detroit Thursday, the Ottawa Senators at Duquesne Garden Saturday and the Hawks at Chicago Sunday. Such a schedule generates frowns freely.

4—As a result of their having packed up only one point in their last three games, the Bucs find themselves trailing the Boston leaders by two and one-half games. The Hub skaters are in third place, and third place is the last place that gets a club into the play-offs and an extra chunk of dough at the finish. The Pirates will have to start winning very soon and will have to keep on winning for a time if they are to pass the Bruins. The Bucs frown when they think of how the Buc brains are addicted to winning. And those are the reasons that the Pirates will use frowns for helmets when they line up for their battle with the Chicagoans here tonight. And if they do a little double-take and come out smiling? Well, that will be because Frank Nighbor has lost his cast and will be "on the ice" for about a month. Ottawa plays here Saturday, and Nighbor is about one-half of the Senators' attack and two-thirds of their defense.

VISITORS IN TRIM

Every member of the Chicago squad, unfortunately, is hale and hearty and eager for fight. Ripley, Hawk center and one of the best scoring aces in the league, is expected to be, and so are Aitkenhead, Taylor and Irvin are not only very healthy, but also very fast. Gottselig and Coture are fairly new to the league, but they are not new to the sport. Manager Herb Gardiner's former defensive corps of the Chicagoans has been transformed into a high-powered offensive playing machine since the Hawks last met the Pirates here and may be seen to good advantage if the going becomes rough.

As for the Pirates—they have scored twelve more goals in each of their last four games, and the Hawks hardly figure to stop them in front. The Bucs' attack has shown steady improvement of late, and with Mosdell back in the lineup the defense is likely to prove adequate. The probable lineups:

Pirates		Hawks
Miller	G	C. Gardiner
J. McKinnon	R. D	Wentworth
Smith	L. D	Loughlin
Fredericksen	C	Ripley
Darragh	R. W	March
Boyle	L. W	Arbour

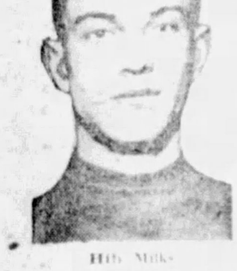
GERMAN HEAVYWEIGHT IMPRESSIVE

HIB MILKS, left wing of the Pittsburgh hockey team is running true to his old form as the leading scorer of the local sextet. He took his accustomed place at the head of the Pirate point-makers by making one of the two goals registered by the Bucs against the Bruins in Boston last Saturday night. That successful shot gave Milks a total of five points for the season to date—four goals and one assist. No other member of the Cleghorn troupe has turned in more than four points.



Hib Milks

Herb Drury, Harold Darragh and Tex White are tied for second place in the scoring table with four points each. Drury has made the same number of goals as Milks, but falls behind Hib in total points because he has no assist to his credit. White and Darragh have driven home only three goals each, but are tied with Drury in the point column because each has contributed one assist. Harold Cotton and Roger Smith rank next on the list with two points each, made up of one goal and one assist.

THE thing that has gladdened the heart of Coach Chick Davies, of Duquesne University, more than any other development since the present collegiate basketball season got under way is the manner in which young Ben Lubic has come along as a varsity performer. Davies was at his wit's end prior to the opening of the campaign, seeking a man to fill the place left vacant by the passing of Jerry Keith, leader of the 1927-'28 Duke five. He needed a good shot and good floorman to pair up with Ganzy Benedict at one of the forward positions. Lubic, a nephew of the former Pitt star and Carnegie Tech coach of the same name, was afforded an opportunity to break into the lineup in some of the pre-season contests played by the Dukes, and his performances were of such a sterling nature as to induce Davies to place him on the first team, despite his lack of experience.

WEST PENN LOOP STATUS PUZZLE TO AMATEURS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

THE West Penn League, operating under the guise of Pittsburgh's premier amateur basketball circuit, has followers of simon-pure athletics in a quandary as to its rightful status in the local realm of sports.

Sponsors of this league still maintain their loop is an amateur one, this in spite of the fact that every team in the circuit is permitted to use two players who are known to be out-and-out professionals, a direct violation of the amateur code of ethics.

RULES EVADED

The amateur rules, according to those who have followed them strictly to the letter, prohibit amateur teams from meeting professionals in any branch of sport unless granted special dispensation by the A. A. U. authorities; prohibit any athlete who has received money for his efforts from competing with or against another amateur and, in their full sense, demand an athlete once a professional always a professional."

Yet the registration committee of the Allegheny Mountain Association, local governing body of the A. A. U., has seen fit to grant the West Penn League a blanket sanction to operate as an amateur organization, although well aware of the fact that two professional stars employed by the majority of its members. The real meaning of a "blanket sanction" is a puzzle to the average follower of sports.

Henry J. Blum, chairman of the registration committee of the Allegheny Mountain Association, asked to give his opinion on the status of the West Penn League, stated the A. A. U. does not regard it as an amateur league. If this is so, why is it necessary for the A. A. U. to grant its players membership cards?

A league is either a professional or an amateur circuit. It can't be both and operate under the amateur banner. Colleges in past years steadfastly have refused to mix with professional teams, yet this winter have seen several local college cage teams engaging in games with teams known to include professional stars in their lineups.

The registration committee of the A. M. A. should give out a statement to clarify the very unusual situation.

JACKETS OPPOSE PITT; TARTANS FACE GENEVA

By JESS CARVER.

TWO members of the Tri-State Conference, Waynesburg and Geneva, are in town today to assist in inaugurating the week's college basketball program here. The Jackets will oppose Pitt's crack quintet in the Stadium pavilion and the Covenanters will play Carnegie Tech.

Coach Sabo's Panthers are to battle the Gold and White jerseys of John Irwin's Club will move a step closer to an all-time record for losing basketball games. The sixteen lost the last three games of the 1927 schedule, dropped 11 in a row last year and have taken it on the whiskers twice so far this season for a grand total of 16 consecutive defeats.

Waynesburg is accorded little chance of beating Pitt. The Jackets are not rated one-two-three in the Conference. Their only hope is to keep the score within bounds tonight. The game was scheduled last week when Dr. Carlson decided that his squad needed the work.

COVENANTERS FAVORED

Geneva is a slight favorite over Tech, and would be more so were it the second semester and the giant Tony Paulsey eligible for competition. In Hanson, Friedman, Montgomery, Emerick and McKinney, Ken Loeffler has a fine looking list of basketeers, a combination easily capable of making the Conference race decidedly a three-cornered one. Capt. Harvey White, Orum, Hugh and Nease are the mainstays of the Plaid.

The probable lineups:

PITT.		WAYNESBURG
Hyatt	F	Allison
Zehnder	F	Porter
I. Cohen	C	Hoover
Baker	G	J. White
Wunderlich	G	Smith

CARNEGIE.		GENEVA.

ATLANTA GIVES TECH GREAT WELCOME

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech, the South's greatest football storm of years, has been finally subdued. Some 60,000 cheering home folks accomplished the feat as the team returned from its Rose Bowl victory over the University of California.

Reaching the Atlanta Terminal Station on a special train at 8:37 p. m. from Pasadena, Cal., amidst the shriek of locomotive and factory whistles, the clang of bells and every noise-making device available, the tumult and untied football team and fans.

The moment the players dismembarked in the station yards, surrounded by hundreds of hilarious admirers and friends at the gates, the celebration started. Scores rushed to see William A. Alexander as he stepped from his car with his mother and he laughingly grasped as many hands as possible before the rush carried him into the station corridors. Every man of the squad had his own little army of well-wishers milling around.

Then the fans paraded dashed almost in unison at different spots in the waiting room and lobby. In front of the station several thousand had massed, unable to gain entrance. Several bands were playing "Hamlin Wreck from Georgia Tech."

Miss Atlanta, Mrs. Winfrey Stuart Ramsey was at the forefront with "Colonel Georgia" and "Uncle Sam," by her side, greeted the gridiron stars as they entered automobiles, and then the parade began. For blocks thousands crowded into the streets to cheer as the procession swept by.

It was probably the greatest outpour of Atlanta's history, a temperature of below freezing notwithstanding.

Godfrey Fouls Walker in Third

Rickard Lies Alone In "Dream" Garden

Rickard's personal friends, even, were permitted to meet the funeral train. So it was at the Garden. Few but policemen were admitted. The bronze casket with its blanket of roses and carnations poised quietly on a supported with four rubber-tired wheels.

The bright-crimson curtains of the lower entrance furnished a ruby setting, the sun shone through the upper windows. Jack Dempsey, the loyal friend, Steve Hannigan Rickard's personal Miami representative, and Billy Gibson, fight manager, stood in the shadows talking over what a great guy "big chip" was.

Undertake attendants rushed in, looking important, bearing more and more floral gifts. There were new ones from the Madison Square Garden employees marked "to the boss." A group of these workmen stood in the doorway where their trick was played. "Everybody out, everybody out," shouted the police.

It seemed that they were to take a death-mask of Rickard. Then they were to drape the entire arena in mourning and dress the amphitheater in fernery.

Thousands jammed the station

this morning, but only friends and newspapermen, numbering more than 100, were permitted to enter the approaches to the train.

Most of the members of the board of directors of Madison Square Garden, body of which John R. Hammond, new fighting general manager, were present to arrange transfer of the body as well as to meet Mrs. Rickard and Jack Dempsey.

Mrs. Rickard was near a state of collapse. The body of the promoter, encased in a $15,000 bronze casket and covered with an immense floral gift of Dempsey, white carnations with "My Pal" in red flowers, was taken to funeral parlors prior to being laid in state later at Madison Square Garden.

Dempsey, much affected by the scenes and disinclined to talk at any length, nevertheless made it clear he had not made any decision about retirement from the ring.

"My plans now are only for the immediate future," said Dempsey. "I shall try to carry out Tex's ideas as well as I can.

"We were interested in many things together and those are the ones I want done as Tex would have had them done.

"Before I decide anything about my personal plans I am going back to Miami ready to help with the Stribling-Sharkey fight. I agreed to fight again for Tex, but everything is so scrambled now that I don't know what I will do until I sit down and think it all out.

"I am not interested in taking Tex's place in Madison Square Garden. No one could do that, and myself perhaps least of all.

"My part in helping with the Miami Beach fight will only be in behalf of Mrs. Rickard and because I know what Tex wanted done."

JACK DELAYS DEATH

Dempsey then excused himself to go forward to Mrs. Rickard's compartment and the rest of the party took up the story.

"Dempsey hasn't said a word about fighting," they declared. "He hasn't discussed any subject except Rickard's death."

According to this remnant of the mourners, Rickard's death was postponed a day and a half by Dempsey's arrival at his bedside.

"We thought he was gone, but when Dempsey got there he rallied amazingly," they said. "It was a miracle to see what human friendship could do. Rickard had been listless, disheartened, but when he saw Jack, he seemed to find something to fight for. It was then that he said, 'I think I've got this thing licked, Jack.' The fight he put up after that kept him alive for 36 hours."

Sports Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

and the list shows the Athletic squad to be the smallest in the main tent. It contains the names of only 27 players, or just two more than the summer limit of 25 to which each club is restricted from June 15 to August 31. And at that DeWitt LeBourveau and Eddie Collins are included, though the former is understood to have been released back to the minors, and Collins is used only in emergencies. The total, which sets a new modern low record for a spring squad, is made up of 11 pitchers, three catchers, eight infielders and five outfielders.

Gus Sonnenberg

CAN you imagine Strangler Lewis, one of the roughest and toughest men in the history of wrestling or any other racket, crawling out of the ring in fright because he alleged Gus Sonnenberg was butting and hurting him, so that the referee finally disqualified the Strangler and handed the world mat championship to Sonnenberg? Probably there was a reason. The big grapplers appear to have found Boston a new spot where wrestling can be committed at a profit. The match drew an attendance of 20,000. Evidently the title had to change hands to steam up the game a bit, and as Boston is wild about Sonnenberg, a former Dartmouth college football player, what could promise to work out better than to have Gus win, and at the same time leave enough room for dispute as to pave the way for a return match? If wrestling were not a sport at which the finger of suspicion has never been pointed, some narrow-minded persons might be tempted to believe that there was something slightly wrong with that Boston affair.

BILL BRENNAN, former major league baseball umpire, who also is a football coach, is advocating a radical change in the gridiron rules covering the use of substitute players during a game. As Brennan outlined his idea to Bill Hanna, the veteran New York critic, he would prohibit, except under certain conditions, any substitutions whatever on or inside the 20-yard lines by either the offensive or defensive team.

When the goal line is threatened, it is pointed out, the defensive eleven takes out a player in a hurry. If the enemy is going through the left guard, for instance, out comes the left guard. On the other hand, if the attacking side needs a certain specialist to execute a particular touchdown play inside the 20-yard line—a bucking halfback, a forward pass receiver, or what not—in goes the specialist. Brennan would stop all that. He contends that the present system helps the team that has the larger squad. He would also return to the old rule prohibiting any player taken out from returning to the game at any time.

NO matter whether the plans of the late Tex Rickard are carried out by somebody else, or some other system is adopted to find a new heavyweight fistic champion, many good boxing judges are firmly of the opinion that Max Schmelling is going to play a prominent part in the competition.

Schmelling's stock has gone up by the well known leaps and bounds since he eliminated Joe Sekyra last Friday night. Defeating Sekyra may have been no astounding feat in itself, but the masterful manner in which the German turned the trick impressed fight followers very favorably.

Max Schmelling

SCHMELLING is said to have shown lots of promise and class from almost every angle. He is fast, a good boxer, has a jolting left jab, shoots quickly, and hard with his right, slips punches without blocking and has a weaving style that enables him always to be in a position to hit. Not once during the Sekyra bout did he resort to holding. His left jab is pronounced the fastest in the heavyweight division, and though he still needs to be taught something about hooking and about doing more punching to the body instead of nearly always to the head his defects are not of a nature that cannot be corrected within reasonable time. All around he looks like a fighter of uncommon possibilities.

Liquor-Drinking Big Problem in Majors

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

THE question of liquor-drinking by major league players is of more importance at the present time than any plan to change the rules of procedure on the diamond.

It had been the proud boast of the lovers of baseball that refining influences had come into the game to contrast the tough and ready behavior of the players famous in the '80s. But the past couple of years has proved that the so-called cultured youths were drinking more hard liquors than the former generation.

There is not a pilot in the big show who does not have more trouble over drinking than ever before. Manager McGraw of the Giants, with his two-fisted discipline seems to have kept down the habit better than any of his contemporaries, but even McGraw cannot check it.

The tendency has grown to a rather alarming state in the past year. In some of the hotels players are called on the phone by bootleggers who solicit orders. It is hard for a manager to figure out the evils of drinking, as other things enter, and naturally many parties are held in rooms.

In the spring training camps the pilots generally issue rules that are supposed to prevail during the summer, but the order dealing with liquor is broken before the training season ends. Some managers threaten their men that they can drink beer or wine, if they see fit, but not that hard liquors are objects, even at the cost of penalties. If the leaders made good on their many threats many members of every club would have been punished.

Some bad feature of the situation lies in the fact that members of the rookie fall into the habit of drinking whisky and other strong drinks, coming up would not even drink beer.

Greenleaf Takes Lead Over Hoppe

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Playing his first match at pocket billiards, Willie Hoppe, former balkline title holder, trailed Ralph Greenleaf, who recently lost the pocket billiard championship, by 134 points in the first two blocks of their 1,500 point handicap match yesterday. Greenleaf won the first block, 137 to 50, in 37 innings and the second 120 to 30 in 16 innings. Greenleaf is giving 125 points to Hoppe's 100 each.

Can Wholesale Dismissal Of Workers Be Avoided?

—By B. C. FORBES—

EXTRAORDINARY interest has been aroused by the recent column describing record wholesale dismissals of workers, including many elderly men, by one corporation president, and discussing the responsibility of corporation heads towards those workers, their stockholders and the public. It was pointed out that the most progressive and successful of modern enterprises are giving more and more consideration to earning the goodwill of their workers and to cooperating with them in providing for old age. Public sentiment frequently has indorsed this humane action.

"It is economically unsound to run a plant that is overmanned. The way to meet the situation is to increase the capacity of the plant and the sale of the product. If this cannot be done and the worse comes to the worst, then the president should shut down the time and pay off the men. This would be much better than to turn these old men out to walk the streets.

"Through no fault of my own, I have lost my job. I am getting old now and, unless I get another job, it will not be long before I am a positive burden and a liability to society. Society will be impoverished because I write this for the good of all."

FROM a woman in Montclair, N. J.:

"The displacement of an older employe opens up an opportunity for a younger man; and it is too true that the younger generation is finding the door of opportunity not nearly so wide open as formerly. The evil of unemployment is the worst feature of our industrial and economic system.

"Shall men of supposedly mature judgment spend their lives deciding who shall have what jobs there are, or shall they pursue a program that will free economic forces and open up jobs for all, both employers and employes?

FROM Chicago:

"I am writing in approval of your column, 'Justice in Wholesale Dismissal of Workers.' You seem to have the realization that your profession puts upon you the onus to use your pen in the interest of humanity."

FROM Battle Creek, Mich.:

"The greatest all-encompassing social problem is that of standardizing the exercise of human relations. Therefore, employers should play no favorites. Society is in need of a more sound reason for putting men to work than that someone may reap a profit from their labor. Federal legislation should be enacted that every business and corporation, after providing for all their contingencies, shall share the net profits of its industry with all of its workers, thus increasing their buying power and making better markets for its own products and for the products of every other business and corporation. This would create confidence, over which hard times would have no gain superiority, and in which there could be no cycles of business depression.

"Today the majority of workers are between the devil and the deep sea. If prosperity fails, they suffer. If it prevails, they are not privileged to share sufficiently in the prosperity. So let's reform our corporation laws."

THE president of a Middle-Western company writes:

"Many years ago a certain railroad in the west adopted a policy of ruthless dismissal, discrimination against older men, and it took them years to overcome the resentment caused in the various communities served by the road. I think it is the policy of most corporations, at least those of modern management, to protect their older employes by a pension or otherwise.

"Because a man loses the authority to discharge people is not wise to exercise same without due deliberation with his associates. It is after all no one man in large organizations fully operates a corporation; its success must come largely from the morale of its officers and its rank and file."

FROM Louisville, Ky.:

"I am one of the many unfortunate salesmen to be 'let out' through merging. I was with the company seven years; one friend with them 25 years and another 41 years, one hundred of us lost.

"We have spent the best part of our lives here, in business. Now a kick in the pants is the reward. So I cannot agree with you and other businessmen who favor mergers. I must have work. Can you suggest a way out?"

FROM Chicago:

"You cannot blame a manager for eliminating waste labor any more than for eliminating other forms of waste. Our economical system must be remodeled to express and to work out in true economical fashion a broader and higher understanding. We must all do our best to let the light shine—as you are doing."

That is exactly the purpose of the whole discussion. To lead to the adoption of the most enlightened action towards workers as well as towards stockholders and the public.

P. & W. VA. MAY REDUCE COAL RATES 20C

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

COAL mines on the line of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway may have the benefits of a 55-cent a ton differential on shipments to lake ports next summer it was intimated by F. E. Taplin, chairman of the board of directors of the road, at a conference in New York.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia and the Wheeling and Lake Erie were not parties to the compromise agreement by which the northern and southern carriers ended their rate war by the establishment of a 35-cent differential on January 1. The Wheeling and Lake Erie is expected to file schedules conforming to the compromise rates, but Mr. Taplin called the conference of railroad executives to determine what lake cargo rate should be charged by his line.

THE compromise resulted in an increase in the rate from Pittsburgh of 20 cents a ton to $1.46 a ton. The rates from the southern fields were increased 10 cents to $1.81 a ton. This reduced the differential from 45 cents to 35 cents.

Mr. Taplin indicated that the Pittsburgh and West Virginia might file a schedule continuing its old rate of $1.26 a ton in effect. This would give mines along the road's line the greatest freight advantage enjoyed by coal producers in this district for many years.

HE EMPHASIZED the necessity for allowing Pittsburgh mines to make some money and at the same time pointed to the fact that the 55-cent differential would not be especially prejudicial to the southern operators since the latter's quality of coal insures it a business of 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 tons of coal.

Mr. Taplin is in the unique position of controling a railroad property as well as coal mines both in this and the southern districts.

Should the Pittsburgh and West Virginia file schedules continuing the low rate the other carriers would probably file objections. It is doubtful, however, if the commission would suspend the rates until a decision is handed down by the Supreme Court on the 20-cent reduction in lake cargo rates made by the southern carriers last spring. Hearings on the case will be held on February 18.

THE action to be taken by the Supreme Court will have a far reaching effect on the future powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the status of the entire rate structure.

The case rose from the fact that the commission recently increased the lake cargo differential from 25 cents to 45 cents by ordering a cut of 20 cents a ton in the rate being charged by the railroads to move coal from this district to the lakes.

The southern roads made a similar cut, nullifying the action of the commission. The commission then forbade the southern roads to place the lower rate into effect. The railroads secured an injunction against the commission. The hearings on February 18 will be on the commission's appeal against this federal court injunction.

THE northern carriers then announced a further cut of 20 cents a ton, again restoring the 45-cent differential. The compromise differential was reached by the two groups of railroads to eliminate the losses arising from the rate cutting policies.

In addition to again throwing the lake cargo case into an unsettled state, if the Supreme Court ruling is against the commission, all the freight rates of the country will be taken out of the commission's hands. The commission would still retain its powers for fixing maximum rates but it would be powerless to prevent rate cutting wars.

HENDERSON R.R. SALE OK'D

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The acquisition of the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis Railway by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad was tentatively approved today in a report to the Inter-State Commerce Commission by agents assigned to investigate it.

At the same time the commission was advised to insert a condition in its approval of the project under which minority stockholders of the Henderson line may have their stock in the corporation independently appraised and sold for cash to the Louisville and Nashville.

The transfer of the Henderson line was opposed by minority stockholders, who alleged that the terms offered them were unfair.

Obituary

Henry Johns, Jr.

Henry Johns, Jr., 79, for many years a furniture merchant of Pittsburgh, died Sunday in Los Angeles, Cal. His Pittsburgh home was at 214 Pennsylvania boulevard, Dormont. He was a son of Henry and Sarah Johns and was born in the old Fourteenth Ward. He was educated in local schools and at a military school in Cleveland. He was a member of the firm Dauler, Close and Johns, which upon his retirement in 1915 became Dauler & Close. He was a charter member of the Oakland Baptist Church. He leaves his wife, Josephine Dauler Johns, a son, George H. Johns; a daughter, Miss Mildred Johns; three brothers, Thomas S., Edward A. and Charles A. Johns, all of Pittsburgh, and a sister, Mrs. George E. Hardie, of Forest Hills, N. Y.

Boyle Funeral.

Funeral services for Stanley Boyle, a clerk in the office of the Board of City Assessors, who died Monday in the Pittsburgh Hospital, will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at Holy Rosary Catholic Church. The funeral will be from the home of A. G. Steniel, 7006 Monticello street. Mr. Boyle was the son of the late Michael and Mary Boyle. He leaves a brother, P. A. Boyle, of Chicago, and three sisters, Mrs. E. J. Sweeney and Mrs. F. J. Novelet, both of Pittsburgh, and Sister Mary Michael, of the Atonement Order, New York.

Mrs. Kunningunda Meyer

Mrs. Kunningunda Meyer, 84, widow of Gotfried Meyer, died yesterday in her home at 217 Climax street. Born in Bavaria, Germany, she came to this country when a girl. She had resided in Pittsburgh for almost 75 years. She was a member of the Most Holy Name Catholic Church. She leaves three sons, two daughters, 21 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Arthur D. Harnden

Attorney Arthur D. Harnden, 49, died last night in his home, 5819 Northumberland street, Squirrel Hill. Born in Waverly, N. Y., Mr. Harnden was educated at Cornell University. He began law practice in New York but came to Pittsburgh two years ago. He was a member of the Third Presbyterian Church. He leaves his wife, a son, a daughter and two sisters.

Edward F. Mailey

Edward F. Mailey, 58, of 421 Monongahela avenue, Glassport, died last night in his home. He was assistant general manager of the Pittsburgh Steel Company and a member of Glassport borough council. He was born in Elizabeth and had been a resident of Glassport 30 years. He was a member of the Rotary Club, McKeesport Council No. 955, Knights of Columbus, and St. Cecelia Catholic Church. He leaves his wife, a son and four sisters.

J. Howard Brewer.

J. Howard Brewer, for many years a resident of Pittsburgh, later going to Canada, died Saturday at his home, Two Island ranch, near Makepeace, Alta. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Maude Van Orsdell Brewer. Burial will be in Canada.

Mrs. Frances C. Crane

Mrs. Frances C. Crane, 69, widow of Charles Elmer Cane, died yesterday in the Pittsburgh Hospital. Her home was at 5911 Wellesley avenue. She was a member of the Highland Presbyterian Church.

Sister Mary Eugene.

Sister Mary Eugene, 63, died yesterday in the Convent of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, Troy Hill. Sister Mary Eugene was born in Pittsburgh, a daughter of Patrick and Rebecca Gourk. For the past 41 years she had been connected with the Sisters of the Good Shepherd. She leaves three sisters. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the convent, with requiem high mass. Burial will take place in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mrs Mollie Smith.

Mrs. Mollie Smith, 64, widow of David O. Smith, died Sunday at her home in Smithton. Mrs. Smith leaves one daughter, Miss Hazel Smith, at home; one son, Harvey C. Smith, of Monessen; two sisters, Mrs. Emma Hassey, of Salem, O., and Mrs. Jennie Johnson, of Lucas, Kans., and two brothers, Joseph F. McClain, of Belle Vernon, and David McClain, of Victory Hill.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—A slight opening advance seemed to attract fresh selling and renewed liquidation in the cotton market today, but the offerings were absorbed on moderate setbacks and prices steadied up again on covering of trade buying. The mid-afternoon period was quiet but steady at net advances of about 8 to 13 points.

Futures closed steady 12 to 16 points higher. January 19.77 to 19.79, March 19.85 to 19.88, May 19.80 to 19.82, July 19.49 to 19.50, October 19.28. Spot quiet, middling 20.00.

The market was quiet later in the morning and after the setback which carried March contracts off from 19.80 to 19.74c prices held steady within a narrow range. At midday active months were about 4 to 7 points net higher. Private reports that the back-to-old cotton was slightly steadier in the southwest, but that business was poor.

PERHAPS the quickest way to familiarize yourself with this case is to go directly to some policeman. Ask him to give you a brief outline of the essential facts.

You can spend a pleasant half hour making notes as he unfolds the strange happenings of that starless night 27 years ago.

When you approach the policeman—if he is a stranger—introduce yourself, explain your status as a reader of this newspaper, engaged in a non-profit making contest. Tell him you want extemporaneous functional data on 36-N 30823.

He may naturally ask for credentials. Very well. Offer him a cigar or a sweet. If he reaches for a sweet, hand him a cigaret, and then—

...l Question of Tax Is in Getting Its Value

Robert Garland, chairman of the finance committee of Council, is out with a defense of the tax rate of Pittsburgh, his views having been prompted by a statement recently published that Pittsburgh has higher taxation than any other large city.

Mr. Garland points out that the separate graded valuation of land and buildings, as applied here for taxation bases, makes impossible comparison with cities having a flat rate for the property taxed whether it be for an unimproved lot or an improved one. Also, the fact that there is no tax here on personal property while there is such a tax in some other cities.

As Mr. Garland points out, there is much difficulty in reaching a satisfactory basis on which to make comparison between one city and another in the matter of taxes and even if it were possible to do so it might not mean as much as the ...ald show. One city might spend a dollar for parks, ...e, while another, with less area, not so well de... d not so well maintained, might spend only 75 cents. One might pay its policemen $150, while another gave him $200 for his services.

It is not the dollars taken from property that counts so much as what they are paid for. Take a township, for example. It has an old school and decides to build a new modern structure. The school tax in that township necessarily will have to be higher for a few years than in the adjoining township which makes its old schoolhouse suffice. Which township would you live in?

Running a city is just like running a house. If one lives on bread and water his expenses will be low. If he buys what his appetite desires he will spend much more. We here have desired that our community table be not restricted to a bread-and-water diet, and we find that we have thrived. Our taxation plan and rate have encouraged building, and we see the results in the great improvement in home building as well as in the great business structures that have been going up for several years, and still are.

While we naturally wish to see our tax rates as low as possible, and are constantly exhorting the tax-making powers to be economical, we do not want to stand still. And we have not stood still. We have bought many millions of dollars of improvements in the last few years and let us hope we will continue to buy them. No bread and water for us, if you please.

Whether our taxes be higher or lower than other cities is of little moment. The big thing is to get what we want, and in full measure, for the dollar we pay.

Flying Fashions

They Are "the Latest."

MONS. POIRET DESIGNS A FLYING COSTUME.

Whatever fair, changeable woman does, she MUST have a dress to go with it. If she is a shepherdess she has a blue bow around her waist—at least in pictures, and on the stage.

Helen of Troy undoubtedly wore something fancy while Achilles and the rest were fighting about her. She probably wore something demure when she went back to live with her husband after the fuss was over.

Queen Dido, racing up and down the beach, shrieking and yelling, planned her costume carefully before she started racing. That is certain.

Women have costumes for golf, horseback riding, archery, costumes for indoors, outdoors, dancing, ten thousand kinds.

And now comes the costume for FLYING. Here is Mons. Poiret, talented Frenchman who invents dresses and keeps husbands busy, trying his "flying creation," made of brown velvet, on the beautiful young American flier, Miss Eleanor Smith.

The suit seems to be a combination of overalls and pajamas. It can't have a short skirt, thank the Lord for that. Even lovely woman would hardly wear a skirt above her knees going through the clouds.

The leg part comes down to the ankle. The arm part comes down to the wrist, held tight to keep the wind from blowing up.

The hat, and neckpiece, well designed, preserve the warmth of the blood, exposed as it goes up and down the great veins and arteries.

But little, you may be sure, does Miss Eleanor Smith care about all that.

"How does it LOOK?" is her question.

If it were made of mosquito netting instead of heavy brown velvet, if the wind of heaven could blow through it and give her pneumonia and if it LOOKED well, still she would wear it.

Such are women, as the wise Lord has made them, and whatever they are there is, of course, a good purpose back of it.

Tales That Are Told

According to Appearance

THE landlady glanced round the table at her 12 hungry boarders before commencing to carve the rather sad-looking chicken.

In rapid succession she asked each of them which part of the fowl they prefered. Ten of them decided on legs.

The carver dropped her knife with a clatter on the dish, and glared at the offenders indignantly.

"What do you imagine this is?" she said sarcastically, pointing to the chicken. "A centipede, or what?"

"Oh, no," replied the boarder who had been served. "Judging by the piece of neck I've got, I should imagine it was a giraffe."

A CELEBRATED tenor had received an enthusiastic reception and was standing in the foyer after his performance.

The people flocked round him, and he was hard put to it to acknowledge all the compliments showered upon him. His arm began to ache, owing to the severe treatment it received.

Finally, an elderly lady simply overwhelmed him with praise, much to his disgust.

"Your singing took me back to my girlhood days," she enthused.

"Really," murmured the singer. "I had no idea my voice would carry so far."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

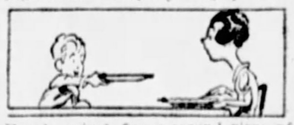
WELL, speaking of the way the kids can disgrace you, there was a little boy that got named Johnnie, somehow, and he performed pretty good manners during the Sunday dinner, when all the high-toned company was present.



But he asked for a second piece of pie, and then a third one. His mother felt kinda terrible about it, and she says, with a false pleasantness, "Why is it, Johnnie, that you always eat so much pie when there is company?"

"'Cause that's the only time we ever have pie," he says. And his mother nearly died because somebody had told the truth at a dinner party.

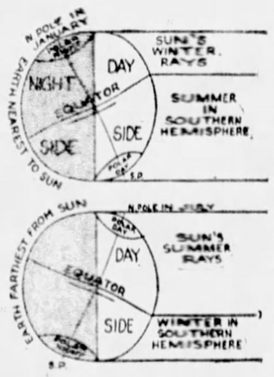
WINTER AND SUMMER

By Garrett P. Serviss

IT SEEMS to stagger the faith of many people in astronomy when they are told on its authority that the earth is three million miles nearer the sun in mid-winter than in mid-summer.

"But," they say, "look at the thermometer! Look at the snow! You say the sun supplies all the heat that the earth gets, don't you? Well, then, how can it be colder when the sun is millions of miles father away?"



WINTER AND SUMMER.

Perhaps the best way to reply to this stumper is to ask: "You don't suppose it is winter all over the earth at the same time, do you? Are you not aware that it is now summer in the Southern hemisphere? The month of January is in temperature the same thing for them that the month of July is for us. But why does this interchange of seasons occur? It is not due to the relatively small change in the earth's distance from the sun, but to the fact that the earth presents first one hemisphere and then the other leaning toward the sun. And it happens that it is the northern hemisphere which leans away from the sun at the time when the earth is in that part of its orbit which lies nearest the sun. The orbit is elliptical, and the sun is about 3,000,000 miles nearer to one end of the orbit than to the other. But the long-way diameter of the orbit is 186,000,000 miles, and the earth's average distance is nearly 93,000,000.

I have made a drawing which shows the situation first in the northern winter and then in the northern summer. In each case things are reversed south of the equator. You can see for yourself how much less abundant the sunshine is on the northern hemisphere in winter than in summer, owing to the opposite slope of the poles with reference to the sun in the two cases. This difference and its immediate effects far more than counterbalance the slight loss (only 6 per cent) caused by the increased distance of the sun in our winter. You see also why the polar nights and days are so long. It takes six months for the slope of the earth's axis to be reversed with reference to the direction of the sun.

At present the southern summer occurs when the earth is nearest the sun and on that account the mean temperature there ought to be somewhat higher than that of our northern summer. But against this it is often urged that the greater oceans south of the equator may tend to mitigate the climate.

Owing to certain movements of the earth, particularly the precession of the equinoxes, the situation as between the northern and southern hemispheres will be reversed in about 10,000 years, and then we shall have our winter when we are farthest from the sun, and our great-great-great . . . great-grandchildren will know how much difference that makes.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

DID Mr. Ford really say that "no successful boy ever saves?"

I don't know. But if he did say so I'm sure he referred to something much more vital than money.

You may or may not save money and be a success, but YOU CANNOT SAVE YOURSELF AND BE A SUCCESS.

You cannot live triumphantly if you go at the job half-heartedly, doling out your energy and enthusiasm with a niggardly spirit.

Life doesn't yield to pinch-penny methods.

It does not give its abundance to those who haggle at the cost.

You must give yourself generously if you wish big dividends out of life, either in money or joy or power or love.

Study the lives of successful people and you will find that this is true of all of them.

Their outward methods might seem to differ.

Some of them used money extravagantly.

Some were thrifty—

Some of them worked at tremendous speed—

Some made a lot of noise about their affairs—

Some didn't—

But in one respect they were all alike—

THEY ALL GAVE THEMSELVES LAVISHLY, WITHOUT COUNTING THE COST, TO THE THING THEY DESIRED.

This does not mean that the giving was aways easy. Successful people, like all other people, must battle with laziness, discouragement, vanity, fear and boredom. Often they must battle even harder than other people. But in spite of these handicaps they gave all they had. And because they gave all they had, because they did not "save" themselves, they won out.

The law applies to every class of work, every type of human. It is as true of the priest and the poet as of the plumber and politician. You cannot do ANYTHING well in this world, whether it be the saving of souls or the selling of cheese, unless you do it with all that's in you. That is the secret of all success.

Bad people are apt to be hustlers. Good people are too often huddlers.

A DARING SINNER HAS IT ALL OVER A TIMID SAINT.

If you want to get anything out of life, spend all you have of yourself; don't save.

Bible Passages

Majesty of the Lord

(Psalm 93.)

THE Lord reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself: the world also is stablished, that it cannot be moved.

The floods have lifted up, O Lord, the floods have lifted up their voice; the floods lift up their waves.

The Lord on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea.

Thy testimonies are very sure: holiness becometh thine house, O Lord, for ever.

Forgetting

WHY this fretting,
When forgetting
Is so much the wiser way?
Follies call men
And enthrall men,
Beckon all men's feet to stray.

Always sighing:
"Time is flying,"
Looking sadly to the past;
Always grieving
Through believing
By-gone days too sweet to last.

Try forgetting!
Stop upsetting
All the order of today;
See how duty,
Joy and beauty
Blossom in their wonted way.

Leave behind you
Ties that bind you
To old phantoms of regret;
And with eager
Heart beleaguer
This day's fortress; come forget!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—It used to be that just to mention Hoboken was good for a vaudeville laugh. Like so many other towns with wild Jersey names it was a peg upon which jokesters hung wheezes. Nobody it would seem journeyed there save to catch a boat.

But Hoboken suddenly became a place of importance and sophistication, and is called "the last seacoast of Bohemia." The intelligentsia began writing pieces about it in the ultra journals. New Yorkers go there in droves to be entertained. In a word, Hoboken has achieved that frazzled description, "smart."

For years it was noted as a German center where the thrifty hausfrau kept her pots and pans shining and sea going husbands, aided by good beer and the tilt of the sea, paraded the sidewalks with rolling gaits. Hoboken's manner was supposed to be stodgy.

The opening of the Holland Tunnel, through which New Yorkers may motor in white-tiled elegance, played its part in the new sparkle. Other things, such as the old-time Hofbrau and German cooking also contributed to the remarkable renaissance.

The new Hoboken is proof that cultured appetites often run to pig's knuckles, red cabbage, tripe and other such low foods. Hoboken has many places where such delicacies may be washed down by frothy mugs of beer whose alcoholic content is a matter for debate.

There is, too, a playhouse which is presenting plays weekly by competent performers. It has none of the "arty" eagerness to save the drama such as is featured by so many obscure theatrical movements. It is merely offering intelligent plays intelligently.

Broadway producers swamped with the cussing and cocktail dramas are already beginning seriously to discuss the "Hoboken movement." And the nightly migrations have been felt by the Times Square eating belt. Among those I saw over there were Charles Hanson Towne, Christopher Morley, Frieda Hempel, Conde Nast, Arthur Hopkins and Berton Braley.

One of the most interesting phases of New York life is the shifting of its amusement centers. Last year the appeal to sophisticates was in Harlem's Black Belt. Few seem to go there any more. And now it is Hoboken.

* * *

There comes to New York streets a strange dead calm between 6:30 and 7:30 o'clock in the evening. All but so-called fashionables are dining. On a busy block in West Forty-second street last night I counted only 10 persons. That's one of the sillies, come to think of it, walking around town—counting people, with all there is to do.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

WOMEN are doing a lot of talking about rights, and brains and education.

They'd get farther if they brought into the picture just a little bit of heart.

The newspapers herald the news that girls have better chances to marry in warm climates. Then they go on to talk about the "mean temperature."

One thing this great independence of women has done. It has made it clear just which business to select to make a financial success. Delicatessen stores increased last year four times as fast as the number of families in the United States.

Oh pigsnuckles! Wouldn't that make you sick?

Some man ought to give one of these women who sue for heart balm, a delicatessen store, and insist that she run it. That ought to make her sit down and not notice anything. Pickled herring and onions all over the place!

The heart balm girls are those who consider the man that got away their last chance. A girl with youth and charm and beauty and it would get another one. What's gone in a woman who sues that-a-way, is hope. And ooo, what a terrible admission!

There is only one thing that ever cures these upstage actresses, who carry around a fine scorn for the commonplace world about them. It's age. I saw one the other day I had interviewed some years ago back stage in Chicago. I had to chase her all over the theater to get a word and she gave that with a snip and a grudge.

She is trying her best to get a newspaper party to come and see her and write a story today, and she has let down 90 degrees.

She no longer has that advantage of 20 years to the good, that made her feel so secure. She speaks to just anybody now.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

AT TIMES you long for a lot of friends.

You feel quite alone.

You have a family, perhaps, but you are fond of variety and you think it must be wonderful to have a great many friends.

You have acquaintances, many of them, but they are not close friends.

You go over the names of persons you know.

Two or three, possibly, you consider your good friends.

What you want is one upon whom you can depend in any and all circumstances.

But if you have even one friend who would sacrifice for you, you are as fortunate as most people in this respect.

It is easy to make friends who will stand by and up for you, up to a certain limit, but difficult to find those who will go beyond that point.

It may be that you expect and desire a measure of friendship that you are not willing to match, point by point, when it comes to the proof.

Then you are selfish and unreasonable.

Good friends—real friends—are few and far between, but they are worth waiting for when your soul is lonely.
